WALL STREET QUIET STOCK TRADE MARKS CLOSE OF HALF YEAR

Brisk Upturn in Market
—Prices on Whole, However, Are Several Points
Below Levels of Early January.

RENEWED HEAVINESS IN WHEAT MARKET

Some Low-Priced Issues
Are Bid Up Sharply —
U. S. Steel and American
Telephone Gain Nearly 4 Points.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 30.—Shares prices ended the first half of the year with a brisk upturn today, but prices on the whole were several points below the levels of early January, when sanguine hopes of a spring bull market in the spring years were widely expressed in Wall street.

The day's trading was about as dull as had been experienced this year, however, and the upturn appeared to be largely the result of short covering. It was notable, nevertheless, that liquidation was almost entirely lacking, and shorts were forced to bid against each other to close out their contracts.
A long list of important shares closed 3 points, or more, higher. A few cautious efforts on the part of bears to revive the decline were quickly abandoned.

Nevertheless, there was no inclination on the part of constructive forces to raise expectations for the advantage. Premature conclusions had been so costly in the past few weeks that traders were disposed to await thorough testing of the present levels.

Call Money Three Per Cent.
Call money, having touched one and one-half per cent last week, renewed at two today, and rose to three for the first time in a fortnight. But this was regarded as the result of temporary withdrawals to meet the mid-year settlement requirements. Week-end news was meager. The Federal Reserve Board's report on May Department stores showed a reduction of only two per cent, as against a drop of three per cent for the first five months. Julius H. Barnes, chairman of President Hoover's Business Survey Council, offered a factual report, but made no conclusions,
without comment or interpretation.
Gains in savings bank
deposits and fairly active retail trade were pleasing in the report.

The first 73 railroads reporting
May earnings showed net operating income of $60,957,000, a decrease of 32.5 per cent from net operating income of $90,328,000 for May last year. The April net operating income for the same roads was $57,- 077,000.

Some Wide Upturns.
Some of the low-priced issues
were bid up in startling fashion.
In a long string on the tape,
Brockway Motor rose from 13 to 29½, a gain of nearly 8 points.
Hahn Department Stores and Long Spring and Wire gained about 4 points.

Allied Chemical was a high flyer gaining 16 points. Shares closing 8 to 10 higher included Case,
Atchison and Eastern Kodak, Autostrop Razor was pushed up 8 points to a new high for the year at $1. Shares closing 4 to 7 higher included Westinghouse Electric,
American Can, Consolidated Gas,
American Can and National Up 3 Points.

G. S. Steel and American Telephone gained nearly 4 points. General Electric Up 3 Points.
The upturn in stocks was in the face of renewed heaviness of wheat. Futures closed 1½ to 1¾ cents a bushel lower, reflecting large receipts, rains in the Northwest and weakness of the Liverpool market. Corn was off about a cent. The cotton market was dull, and price changes narrow.

Foreign exchanges generally eased, possibly reflecting a return of foreign funds for investment in this market. Sterling caches ruled at $4.86, off ¼ of a cent.

Stock prices, with other tables and market news, will be found on pages 9C, 10C and 11C.

KILLED IN PARACHUTE JUMP FROM AIRPLANE

Homer Kollmorgen, 19, of St. Louis County Victim of Accident at Owensville, Mo.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OWENSVILLE, Mo., June 30.—Homer Kollmorgen, 19-year-old son of the Rev. and Mrs. A. Kollmorgen, 4107 Cedarwood place, St. Louis County, was killed here yesterday afternoon when a part of the harness of his parachute broke and he fell 2,800 feet as he jumped from an airplane piloted by Len Fraser of Belleville, Ill. The jump was part of an exhibition here.

Kollmorgen's body fell through the roof of a bungalow owned by Jack Hinson, into the parlor and through the floor into the basement. Furniture in the room was destroyed by the fall of the body and the flooring from the attic.

The youth, according to members of his family, had been parachute jumping since last fall and for several weeks had been making parachute jumps for Frazer in returns for lessons in piloting.

Coroner Julius Lingener of Gasconade County returned verdict of death as a result of failure of a parachute to open, cause unknown. Funeral services will be held Wednesday.

INJUNCTION SOUGHT AGAINST COUNTY GOLF DRIVING TEE

Petroleum Corporation Says Customers at Motor Terminal Are Endangered.

An injunction suit against operation by Edgar Loehr of a golf driving tee at Des Peres Avenue and Manchester road, St. Louis County, was filed in Circuit Court at Clayton today by the Pierce Petroleum Corporation, operator of a motor terminal and restaurant adjoining the tee on the west and the Pierce Pipe Line Co., owner of the terminal site. The petition alleges that many golf balls are driven from the driving range to the terminal property, endangering customers and workmen there, and that several persons at the terminal have been seriously injured by driven balls.

Loehr, who resides nearby and has a garage in Des Peres, sold the terminal site to the Pierce company. The company will open two miniature 18-hole golf courses at the terminal in a few days, but, according to President E. D. Levy, will not maintain a driving tee.

Levy said there was no quarrel with Loehr, but that the ground space of the driving range was too small for safety at the terminal.

Describes 18-Year Career.

In a news page story under the signature of Robert M. Lee, city editor of the Chicago Tribune, a picture of Lingle as he appeared to his fellow workers is given today.
This account states that Lingle was understood to be well-to-do and not dependent upon his $65-a-week salary.

Lee's story traced Lingle's large acquaintance, not only among gangsters and police heads but also among lawyers, judges and financers. The gangster acquaintance ships were looked upon at the time as necessary if Lingle were to be in a position to report properly and accurately the affairs in gang-land. In view of developments since his murder, the story points out that some of these acquaintances have taken on a different significance.

9 TAKEN IN RAIDS IN SEARCH FOR LINGLE'S SLAYER

Sublette County, Wyoming, the bones of Pinkney W. Sublette—that box full of crumbling remains which have reposed these 32 years in the basement of the old Court-

"Here they laid the foundations wrote. "The remains are removed to Sublette County and buried

CHICAGO, June 30.—Led by Patrick Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson, a squad of State and Federal officers late today raided a room at the Commonwealth Hotel on Diversey Parkway and arrested Charles P. Conrad and Willis (Shorty) Cohen, reputed "front men" for George (Bugs) Moran.

As the raiders entered, Cohen grabbed a large ledger and threw it out the window. It was recovered by officers and found to contain a list of about 150 men, many of whom are known to be Moran gangsters. Roche thinks it is a Moran payroll list.

The arrest followed a tip that developed several days ago in New York, when Federal officers seized a carload of liquor which they said was en route to Chicago for Moran.
Word of the arrest was suppressed to enable the follow-up at the Chicago end.

After Cohen and Conrad were taken to the office of Assistant State's Attorney Charles F. Rath-bun, special prosecutor in the investigation of Alfred Lingle's murder, he was told that the killing had been committed in a squadron. The reason for the conference was divulged, but it was assumed to mean that authorities think a clew to the murder has been found.

Suspect in the Murder.

Roche's men also raided an office at 520 North Michigan avenue and arrested seven men, one of whom is reported to be a suspect in the Lingle killing. They were taken to Roche's office and questioned.

The suspect was identified as Grover Dillard, reputed bookmaker and Moran gang member. Investigators suspect him of having been the man who passed the revolver to Lingle's slayer in the Michigan avenue tunnel at the time of the killing.

He is reported to have been loitering at the corner of Randolph and Clark streets—location of the Sherman Hotel—shortly before Lingle left the hotel to go to the race track. Dillard is reported to have been connected with the Sherman, Wabash, Night Club, which was opened by President Hoover

House.

TWO MEN DROWN IN MERAMEC ON SUNDAY OUTINGS

Robert Levy, Who Could Not Swim, Stepped Into Deep Water When Bathing With Niece.

OTHER VICTIM HAD HAD HEAVY DINNER

Frank Kaspar Could Have Been Revived If Crowd Had Stayed Back, Companion Says.

Two persons were drowned in the Meramec River yesterday. They were Robert Levy, 2644 Cherokee street, and Frank Kaspar, 1808 Victor street.

Levy, a member of the "Nutty Crest" Club, was at the river with his wife and four children. In company with his niece, Miss Cecelia Price, 5755 Waterman avenue, he waded 150 yards north of his club-house to a point in front of the club-house of the American Car and Foundry Co.

Miss Price was just behind her uncle, who could not swim, when he encountered a step-off into deep water. He went under, rose and called to the young woman, "Stay there." Then he sank again and did not reappear.

Miss Price, who had an inflated automobile inner tube about her body, clung to a tree branch until she was rescued by two women in a boat. She alighted the river bank at the point where the drowning occurred, gave warning that the water is 18 feet deep.

Members of the Red Cross river patrol and a professional diver searched for the body unsuccessfully last night.

Levy conducted a shop below his home. He was 42 years old.

Drowns at Hollywood Beach.

Kaspar was drowned when he dived into the river, across the stream from Hollywood Beach, just after eating a heavy dinner.

Friends who knew he could swim thought at first he was remaining under water purposely. In a few minutes they called swimmers, who found the body five feet from where Kaspar had disappeared.

A crowd pressing around his body, who probably prevented them from saving Kaspar's life, according to M. Schmid, 3825 Kingsland court, one of the bathers with Kaspar.

Schmid said Kaspar's body was pulled out of the water 12 minutes after the man dived from a float. "We had a trained nurse there and I believe we could have revived him if it had not been for the crowd," said Schmid. "More than 300 persons gathered and pressed about the body so closely that there was no air and we couldn't keep them back."

An inhalator squad from the St. Louis County Gas Co. worked over the body for an hour.

Kaspar, 27 years old and a tennis player, was unmarried. Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alois J. Kaspar, and four brothers, Alois Jr., Anthony, Joseph and August. Funeral services will be at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning at the William C. Moydell undertaking establishment.

Six Meramec Victims in 1920.

Six persons have drowned in the Meramec this summer.

James Boyland, 1445 East Grand avenue, was drowned in the Mississippi River at Alton Saturday night. He was 28 years old.

Boyland, with a party of friends, had gone to Alton in a motorboat to attend the opening of the Illinois Yacht Club yesterday. The group had a boat to the tug Blue Marie, and went ashore. Returning about 9 o'clock, Boyland stumbled over a stanchion on the tug and fell into the water. One of his brothers, Thomas Heyland, dived in to rescue him, but lost his grip when the drowning man seized him about the neck. Search for the body yesterday was unsucces-ful.

Three Slayers Electrocuted in Pennsylvania Prison

BELLEVILLE, Pa., June 30.—Three murderers were electrocuted at the Rockville Penitentiary today. They were Martin Avery and William Henry Sled, Negroes, of Pittsburgh, and Frank Tausa, of Wilkes-Barre. Tausa, formerly of Bridgeport, Conn., and it was testified at his trial that he was once a companion of Gerald Chapman, also executed for murder.

Avery, who was only 19 years old, and Sled, 30, were convicted of the killing of Edward J. Kress during the holdup of a Pittsburgh drug store June 21, 1929. Tausa paid with his life for the slaying of Thomas Kroksky, a policeman of Luzerne Borough, on Sept. 24, 1929.

Kroksky was shot to death while he and another policeman were pursuing Tausa after an attempted burglary.

French Athlete and Mlle. Simone Thion de la Chaume Married in Paris.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 30.—René La Coste, French tennis star, and Mlle. Simone Thion de la Chaume, champion woman golfer of France, were married in the Church of Ste. Clothilde at noon today. La Coste, former world tennis champion and a golfer of note as well, received the congratulations of all France, as did his bride.

Mlle. Simone was attired all in white satin and tulle. La Coste, whose ill health had twice delayed the marriage, looked bronzed and happy. He wore morning dress with a white carnation in his button-hole.

Tennis at Wimbledon prevented the attendance of several tennis stars who would otherwise have been among the hundred guests who struggled with the crowd which arrived early in the morning and filled all of the church. The bride was to be married at the church.

Later an announcer told her he wanted her to speak over the radio and send greetings to her boys who have a receiving set in their plane. She slipped away for a while, but when her time on the program came, she was in front of the microphone in a new brown straw hat and a black silk dress.

"Hello, Kenneth; Hello, John. It's your mother speaking. I'm so proud of you."

She hadn't wanted to see her boys grow up to be aviators—not at first. "I was afraid," she explained. "But now, I look on it just like riding in an automobile, don't you?"

"However, I guess I'm not much advertisement for my boys. I have only been up once."

"My baby boy—Kenneth—had a birthday in the air. He was 22 years old on June 18. He got to celebrate it like he wanted to—by flying his way to set a new record."

After La Coste's arrival, amid the pealing of the church bells, Mlle. Simone and her father drew up in a motor car, the bride's arrival coinciding with the first peal.

After the wedding La Coste said that he was through with tournaments tennis, for the present at least, and that he intended to specialize in the game which brought his wife fame, in which he already had made a good beginning.

The bride played tournament golf up to six days ago. On June 24 at Laboule, with a double partner, she won the cup given by her father and known as the Thion de la Chaume trophy. Again she

WASHINGTON, June 30.—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd gave the principal address yesterday at the dedication of the foundation for a 24-story combination church and apartment hotel being built for the Broadway Temple Methodist Episcopal Church, Broadway and 17th street.

Thanking the church for a plan to name a huge lighted cross that is to top the tower the "Admiral Byrd Aviation Beacon," the Admiral dedicated the beacon to aviators who have lost their lives in attempting to fly across the Atlantic.

"This beacon will be of tremendous benefit to aviators," said Byrd. "It will mark a mile-stone in the progress of aviation. It will help not only aviators but surface ships at sea. It will save many lives."

YOUTH, 17, SLAIN BY CHICAGO GANG; THROWN IN DITCH

Boy, Arrested Frequently by Police, Shot Nine Times—Two Pistol Clips Near the Body.

CHICAGO, June 30.—The body of Frank Pettitt, 17 years old, shot nine times, was found in a ditch near McCook, Ill., today.

Hijacking distillery operators brought his death at the hands of older criminals, police think. He was said to have been a member of the "42" Gang, junior organization of West Side hoodlums.

Pettitt had been arrested frequently and said he was Michael Gallicchio, 21. Police say he lied about his age because he feared commitment to the State reformatory in case of conviction.

Pettitt had been slain on the spot, authorities declared after finding two clips from a .45-caliber pistol near the body. A refinery plant watch stumbled over the body at dawn. Expedited and flashy clothing suggested his killing.

The slayers had left a nickname, traditional "carface," pressed into Pettitt's fist.

The region in which the body was found is the same in which John "Dingbat" Oberita and several other reputed gangsters have been found murdered, beside the Joliet road and the tracks of the Belt Line Railroad.

Unidentified Man Found Shot Dead Near Kentland (Ind.).

By the Associated Press.

KENTLAND, Ind., June 30.—The bullet-riddled body of an unidentified man, apparently about 30 years old, secretary to Joseph Wayne Jr., president of the Philadelphia National Bank, jumped or fell to his death today from the coping around the roof of the 23-story Philadelphia bank building.

Persons in nearby office buildings and passersby on the street said Miss Snowden posed for several minutes, waving her arms wildly, before she dropped.

Wayne said Miss Snowden had been in a highly nervous condition for several months. He said he had urged her for some time to take a rest, fearing she would have a nervous collapse.

An examination of the man's effects disclosed a silver belt buckle bearing the initial "P" and a hand-kerchief on which was written in red ink the name "John."

Marks on the ankles and wrists indicated that the victim had been bound. Authorities also said footprints showed that he had been led from the highway to the spot where his body was discovered.

cash by working in coal mines to scrape enough together to buy a second-hand plane. It was an old Standard—theirs ready for the scrap heap. Walter learned to fly first in St. Louis and then taught his brothers.

Then came barnstorming tours with Walter and Albert piloting the ship and Albert and Kenneth doing wing-walking and parachute jumping at county fairs. John finally entered the air mail service; Walter got a transport plane; Kenneth became an instructor and Albert stayed in Sparta.

The City of Chicago is a second-hand two-year-old Stinson-Detroit cabin monoplane, powered by a 300-horsepower Wright Whirlwind motor. The ship had been flown more than 75,000 miles previously to the beginning of the present flight 19 days ago. The refueling plane is of the same type.

A small fortune awaits the landing of the Hunter brothers. The record itself will be worth many thousands of dollars to them. There will be emoluments used. There will be a percentage of the profits made by other fliers at Sky Harbor which carried passengers attracted to the field by the endurance performance.

Altogether the profits of the flight will be $100,000.

WO WAR FLYERS KILLED IN CRASH

Capt. A. E. Flood and Lieut. Benjamin Berkowitz Among Best in Reserve Corps.

Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Capt. Alfred E. Flood and Lieut. Benjamin Berkowitz, World War fliers and rated two of the best pilots among the Army Reserve officers at Mitchel Field, were killed yesterday when their training plane crashed at Westbury, L. I.

The two aviators, in a PT-1 plane, had been up about half an hour, and were seen to come down from a high altitude in a spiral glide, their motor throttled down. Flood, who was believed to have been piloting, attempted to nose the ship up again. Something went wrong, and at an altitude of less than 10 feet, it went into a dive as he attempted to make a forced landing on the grounds of the Meadow Brook Country Club.

Both men served overseas with the Army Aviation Corps. Flood, who was 42 years old, was assistant principal of a public school in the Bronx, and lived with his wife and two children. Berkowitz, 35, was in the real estate business.

Under Community Fund Rules Cannot Solicit Help — 500 Families a Month Turned Down.

The St. Louis Provident Association, largest of the Community Fund agencies, faces a financial crisis and will close its doors to new applicants for aid, confining its activities to the needy families already under its care, it was announced today.

Widespread unemployment and an ever-increasing demand for relief at a time when demand usually falls off is cited as the principal factor in the crisis, and the city is accused of "lying down on its job" when other cities are increasing public appropriations for general relief.

A joint announcement issued by the Provident Association and the Community Fund stated that during the first half of 1930 the association spent $100,100 for material aid such as food, rent, fuel and clothing for needy families, and had but $59,000 left for the remaining half year.

Half Goes to Operation.

The Association, which receives more than $250,000 a year from the Community Fund to finance its work, spends about half the total for office rent and upkeep, automobiles, salaries of executives, social workers and supervisors and other expenses. Its method of operation is to investigate each applicant for aid, and, if found worthy, proceed with its work on the theory of direct aid and rehabilitation over a period of time.

Under the new plan of operation, the organization will be forced to turn away at least 500 families a month for an indefinite period. It was estimated, and will continue to assist about 2200 families. Having spent about $16,000 a month during the first half year, it will aid its expenditures for material aid to $10,000 a month during the remainder of 1930.

Because the Board of Estimate and Apportionment refused to increase the appropriation of the Board of Children's Guardians from $118,000 to $222,688, the Provident Association "is forced to carry a burden of approximately $130 a month for the care of widows' families," Samuel C. McCluney, president of the association, said in separate statement.

What Other Cities Do.

"While St. Louis is lying down on the job," McCluney said, "other cities are rising courageously to the emergency." Detroit, he said, has appropriated from $500,000 to $1,000,000 for family relief. Boston is planning to spend $3,000,000 this year; Milwaukee has been giving as much as $50,000 a month; Philadelphia has made three special appropriations of $50,000 each and is considering a fourth; Buffalo has voted an additional appropriation of $170,000, and Chicago, San Francisco and Pittsburgh have special funds for outdoor relief.

The Provident Association, as a member of the Community Fund, cannot make a special contribution for funds," said McCluney's statement. "It is, however, the privilege of the giver to designate gifts to an agency, and in such cases the Provident Association would have the right to accept such unsolicited funds for the purpose of reducing the period over which the present policy will prevail."

Has $300,000 Estate.

Robert W. Kelso, director of the Community Fund, pointed out that the fund had accumulated a deficit of more than $200,000 and did not dare borrow more money to increase the Provident Association's allowance.

Commenting on the campaign of last December when $2,017,617 was pledged for the support of the 51 charitable and social service agencies of the Community Fund, Kelso said: "Judged by the needs of a normal year, the last campaign was more nearly successful than any previous campaign, but judged by the tremendous demands on charities which have developed during 1930, the campaign failed to provide funds adequate for the minimum needs."

Wooler's services included conferences over various suits against the estate and extended from July 29, 1926, to Nov. 24, 1929. He asked the Court for a $50,000 fee. Mrs. Culver, who left the bulk of her estate to seven nieces and nephews and who gave more than $1,000,000 to charity, education and religion during her lifetime, was the widow of L. L. Culver, one of the founders of the Majestic Manufacturing Co.

PERSIAN BAND INVADES TURKEY

By the Associated Press.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, June 30.—Delayed dispatches from Van and Diyarbakir report that a band of 100 Kurdish horsemen from Persia are entrenched on Mount Ararat, hemmed in by Turkish troops.

The band crossed the frontier from Persia into Turkey June 29, joining the Kurdish Haydarani tribe, to which they are related, and plotted the end of a rubber hose attached to an open gas jet close to its face. The body was found by Zoeller's wife, Genevieve, who said she had left home Saturday night following a quarrel with her husband.

Ends Life After Row With Wife.

Louis Zoeller, 57 years old, was found dead of gas poison in the basement of his home, 2758 Lee Avenue, last night. Zoeller had fastened the end of a rubber hose attached to an open gas jet close to his face. The body was found by Zoeller's wife, Genevieve, who said she had left home Saturday night following a quarrel with her husband.

TWO HEATER SALESMEN HELD FOR SWINDLING

Men Who Promised $10,000 Job Found by Postal Inspectors.

Two suave men who disappeared after selling a St. Louis $85 forty-cent electric water heater for $2276, by promising him a branch manager's job paying $10,000 a year and commissions, have been arrested by Post Office Inspectors. A third man still is at large.

The complainant, W. T. Warren, 325 Clara avenue, told Inspectors Noah and Mayer, they said, that he met the three men in a downtown hotel when he answered a newspaper advertisement. They introduced themselves as C. C. Fritz, C. F. Ballie and S. L. Joyner, and after asking Warren to invest $3500, compromised on $276.

Warren said the men took him to an elaborately furnished office which they said would be his. All office expenses, they asserted, would be paid by the water heater company.

Fritz and Ballie then left and Joyner stayed on to organize Warren's sales force. In two days Joyner turned in 200 orders for heaters and then he, too, departed. The heaters were to be mailed, c. o. d. to purchasers. Warren found that all of Joyner's orders were false, when the heaters were returned unclaimed.

He communicated with the inspectors who arrested Joyner in Davenport, Ia., and Ballie in Milwaukee, Wis. The inspectors said the heaters, which sold for $6.80 apiece, cost 40 cents to manufacture.

Source of Money Mystery.

The report did not indicate from what source the money came, but said every effort was made to find out. Sums running up to several thousand dollars were lent to Lingle, according to the information the investigators obtained, by politicians and by men reputedly connected with gang and crime.

The State's Attorney's report explained that no information to the actual progress of the hunt for Lingle's slayer would be made public at this time for fear of hampering the investigation.

As near as the financial statement made public yesterday could determine, Lingle in the last two years had an income of approximately $60,000 a year.

Police agree the killing of Lingle was done at the instance of the Alie-Moran mob. The predominant motive, they think, was to effect the upheaval that resulted in the removal of Police Commissioner Russell, who virtually cut off the North Side organization's revenue through a series of raids upon their thriving night clubs, gambling houses and saloons.

Apparent That Lingle Used Job for Profit, Chicago Tribune Says.

CHICAGO, June 30.—The Chicago Tribune, in its leading editorials today headed "The Lingle Murder," says in part:

When Albert Lingle was murdered the motive seemed to be apparent. He was a Tribune police reporter and when he was shot, his newspaper saw no other explanation than that his killer either thought he was close to information dangerous to them or intended the murder as a

GUNMEN RAID U. S. WAREHOUSE, TAKE $30,000 IN LIQUOR

Gang of 15 Works Three Hours to Remove Alcohol From Chicago Building in Big Trucks.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 30.—Fifteen gunmen held control of a Government warehouse on South Wabash avenue for three hours last night and trucked away whisky, brandy and alcohol, the value of which exceeds $30,000. Included in the liquor stored in the warehouse were 400 cases of bonded whisky, shipped to Chicago from Jacksonville, Fla., presumably by agents of Al Capone, and seized by Federal agents.

The theory that the raid on the warehouse last night was made by gangsters seeking to recover the seized liquor, is being investigated.

E. C. Yellowley, in charge of liquor permits, said the robbers apparently were familiar with the warehouse. They took only the choice liquors.

Paul Perry, night watchman, was alone when four men, each carrying a large can, appeared at the entrance. Perry thought they were Federal prohibition agents bringing more liquor for storage and he admitted them. Pistols were thrust against his side and he was bound, gagged and blindfolded. The gang leader then admitted the others and the three-hour job of carrying out the cases of liquor to trucks was begun.

The raid on the warehouse did not end until shortly after 1 o'clock this morning.

The liquor was stored on the second floor, and the night watchman said that many trips were made on the elevator to the ground floor, where it was loaded into trucks. The raiders worked fast.

Police think the raid may have been inspired by the desperate plight in which liquor syndicates have found themselves as a result of the recent police shakeup. The police theory is that, in addition, finding no source of supply from outside Chicago endangered, arranged the raid so as to obtain liquor with which to meet the demands of its trade.

Only a few of the raiders, probably only the four men whom the night watchman admitted, were gangsters, police think, the others being laborers and roustabouts who did the actual work.

H. C. O'REAR, MILLINERY MERCHANT, DIES SUDDENLY

Henry C. O'Rear, 52 years old, president of the Century Millinery Co., 513 Washington avenue, which he founded with a group of associates here in 1928, died suddenly in Forest Park yesterday morning following a heart attack while out driving with his wife and some friends.

Mr. O'Rear complained of feeling ill and alighted from the car, dying before aid could be summoned.

Funeral services will be at 9:30 a. m. Wednesday from St. Michael and St. George's Church, with burial in Oak Hill Cemetery.

The body is at the residence of H. A. Nylander, 5943 De Giverville avenue.

Death From Natural Causes.

A coroner's verdict of death by natural causes was returned today in the case of Edward Easton, 76 years old, found dead in the basement of a cafe at 861 North Sixth street, yesterday afternoon, in a building adjoining the Swan House, 803 North Sixth street, which had been fumigated. Investigation showed that Easton had suffered from heart disease. He lived at Father Dempsey's Hotel, 1111 North Seventh street.

given the newspapers that crime was ruler in Chicago.

The Tribune assumed that the criminals were beginning their attack upon newspaper exposure. The other newspapers took the same view. The Herald and Examiner and the Chicago Evening Post joined the Tribune in offering rewards for evidence which would lead to conviction of the murderers.

Albert Lingle now takes a different character, one in which he was unknown to the management of the Tribune when he was alive. He is dead and cannot defend himself, but many facts now revealed must be accepted as eloquent against him.

The reasonable appearance against Lingle now is that he was in the world of politics and crime for something unimagined in his office and that he used this in undertakings which made him money and brought him to his death. He should not be held responsible if he was enticed into this pool and the Tribune regrets it for the boy's sake and for the sake of the profession.

The first report of the investigation by State's Attorney Edward W. McGrath was published yesterday in the Tribune. It contains all the facts and plausible intimations which indicate that Albert Lingle was killed because he was using his Tribune position to profit from criminal operations and not because he was serving the Tribune as it thought he was. Events will prove that this newspaper has nothing to cover in this connection.

CHIEF FIRE MAKES APPEAL FOR SAFE AND SANE FOURTH

Suggests That Excursions and Fireworks

In an appeal for a safe and sane Fourth of July celebration, Fire Chief Alt today outlined precautions to be taken to avoid losses and injury by fireworks on that day. Primarily the appeal asks for the substitution of recreations, sports, excursions and public exercises, for fireworks and more hazardous ways of celebrating the day.

Parents are urged to warn their children of the danger of fireworks, to clean the premises of their homes of all inflammable litter, to keep a garden hose in readiness to extinguish the smallest blaze, to report any blaze to the Fire Department promptly. The North and South Christian Chiefs, Alt and Charles, and Chief Alt, are the two most dangerous days of the year, with the fire hazard increased about 100 per cent over normal times.

COURT REFUSES TO HALT PICKETING OF RESTAURANT

Judge Pearce Dismisses Suit of David Steinberg, 621 North

A. m., yesterday, found the speck of an island 800 miles away, circled above it in a tropical downpour, then headed back, landing at Curtiss Field at 9:02 p. m.

At Hamilton, Bermuda, the flyers dropped a sack of mail. In it was a cablegram addressed to Dr. James H. Kimball, New York meteorologist, congratulating him on the accuracy of the weather reports which he had furnished the flyers before the start.

The flight to the island required 9 hours and 15 minutes, the plane arriving over Hamilton at 1:20 p. m.

The return flight was made in 7 hours, 42 minutes.

The flyers said they had no trouble in finding the island, although it is a low-lying spot in the Atlantic and they were troubled with fog part of the way.

The purpose of the flight was to test the feasibility of commercial air travel between New York and the winter resort of Bermuda.

The Columbia was the plane in which Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine flew from Roosevelt Field to Germany in June, 1927. Earlier that year Chamberlin and Bert Acosta established in the Columbia an endurance record of more than 51 hours, bringing the record to this country for the first time.

Williams and Capt. Lewis A. Boyd, who had been stopped at Little Gull Island after it had been stopped with machine gun fire from two coast guard patrol boats. The Chickie had a crew of three, none of whom was injured by the bullets. Last week it was seized for violation of the navigation laws and fined $60 in New York City.

The Columbia was captured after it had been shot at by a coast guard patrol boat near Montauk Point.

One-pounders were fired across the bow of the Chickie, both near Montauk Point and Little Gull Island, coast guard officials said, before machine gun fire was resorted to.

KILLED WHEN AUTO HITS CATTLE TRUCK NEAR ST. CHARLES

Frank E. Rathert, St. Louis, on Way to Kansas City, Where He Recently Took New Job.

Frank E. Rathert, 542 West Peopling street, was killed at 1:30 a. m. today, when his automobile veered to the wrong side of the road on a curve on Route No. 40, four miles west of St. Charles, and collided headon with a truckload of cattle. The force of the collision was such that a piece of wood, torn from the side of the truck, pierced his chest. The truck driver, Arthur F. Vandeticht, Bala, Mo., who was going east, was not injured.

Rathert, who was 29 years old, was a clerk for the American Optical Co., and had been transferred recently to the Kansas City branch.

He was on his way back to Kansas City, after visiting his wife and planning for the establishment of their home there.

A verdict of accident was returned today at an inquest at St. Charles.

Henry Steinmeyer, 62 years old, 928A Hickory street, died at city hospital last night of a fractured skull suffered last Friday night when he was struck by an automobile at Twelfth and Hickory streets.

Raymond Deviney, 1911A North Fifteenth street, the driver, told police Steinmeyer ran in front of a street car and into the side of the machine. Steinmeyer was a stage-hand and resided with his wife, Eva, at the Hickory street address. His death brings the total of motor vehicle fatalities in St. Louis since Jan. 1 to 75, compared with 72 during the corresponding period last year.

Herman Boston, 1413 Olive street, suffered a fractured hip at 10 o'clock last night when struck by a machine while attempting to cross the street in front of his home. The driver did not stop. The car bore Illinois license plates.

A machine driven by Michael Slamb, an electrician, 1233 South Grand boulevard, broke a fire plug and crashed into the show window of an unoccupied store at 1321 South Broadway yesterday afternoon. Slamb said the accelerator stuck, causing him to lose control. His wife, Marie, was cut on the face by broken glass.

Charles Clavin, residing near Jefferson Barracks, suffered fractures of the skull and ribs early yesterday when his machine upset at Kingshighway and Schollmeyer avenue as he swerved to avoid a collision with another car.

Three persons were injured in a collision of two machines at Vandeventer and Forest Park avenues early yesterday. The injured are Frank Johnston, fractured shoulder; his wife, Viola, cuts and bruises, and Miss Bertha Ping, fractured hip. They reside at 2028

Nicholson place.

Jessie Louise, 8-year-old daughter of Earl R. Hunter, 2643 Oregon avenue, suffered a fractured skull and concussion of the brain stop.

VISITS HERE BRIEFLY

By St. Louis Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer
DWIGHT W. MORROW.
U. S. Ambassador to Mexico.

MORROW IN ST. LOUIS, SILENT ON POLITICS

Stops in City 41 Minutes on Way to Mexican Capital—Visits College Friend.

Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow,
New Jersey Republican nominee
for the Senate, passed through St.
Louis last night, on the way to Mexico City and made a flying visit, in his 41 minutes between trains,
to the home of Luther Ely Smith, St. Louis attorney, who was his classmate at Amherst.

On the way to St. Louis, the
New Jersey Republican nominee, whose campaign headquarters in vain attempted to stifle praise of his presidential fitness, decided to discuss public questions. It was obvious that he considered his trip anything but a political tour, and did not want to have the remotest aspect of one.

Ambassador Morrow was on the way to Mexico City to clear up embassy affairs before his return next September for the Senatorial campaign. He will reach Mexico City next Thursday, in time for the American colony's observance of the Fourth.

Morrow Chered at Terre Haute as Next President.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., June 20.—
Several hundred persons waited more than an hour yesterday to greet Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow when he passed through Terre Haute on his way to Mexico City.

"Hello, grandfather," they shouted when they recognized him, standing on the platform of his private car. He nodded and smiled but abstained from saying more than "Glad to see you" and "thank you." Apparently he was under the impression the gathering was wholly due to reflected glory from the Lindbergh son.

"Come on—talk; tell us you're going to be the next President," a woman called, and a shade of embarrassment crossed his smile. A man leaped on a baggage truck, called for "three cheers for the next President," and got them.
Ambassador Morrow, embarrassed, gave a farewell smile, waved and retreated into the car.

VATICAN STATE, June 20.—
Pope Pius XI held a secret consistory this morning and created five new Cardinals.

The five prelates so honored were not present. Only the Pope and the Cardinals of the Curia were within the hall when the consistory began, and the doors were locked and guarded by Swiss and Noble guards. The new Cardinals waited at their residences until the "Big-lietto" or note should arrive acquainting them of their election.
They were:

Mr. Sebastiano Leone da Sil-vana Cintia, 48 years old. Conductor of the Apostolic of Rio Janeiro.

Mr. Francisco Marchetti Se-vagritti, 55, widely known in the United States, where he was auditor of the Pontifical Delegation at Washington. He is now secretary of the congregation of the propagation of the faith. During the war while stationed in the Nunziature at Munich, he labored for the better treatment and exchange of prisoners and invalids. He is the sole Roman of the five.

Mr. Raffaele Carlo Rosati, 54, a Carmelite, assessor of the Congregation of the Council.

Mr. Achille Lienart, Bishop of Lille, one of the youngest Bishops of France, having been elected to the episcopate two years ago. He is noted as an arbitrator between capital and labor.

Mr. K. Butler as U. S. Marshal.

GOV. ROOSEVELT URGES INSURANCE FOR UNEMPLOYED

New Yorker Tells Governors' Session It Is Economic Necessity to Meet Situation Such as Exists Now.

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, June 29.—Unemployment insurance, including old age security, was advanced by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York in an address before the National Governors' Conference here today, as an economic necessity to meet situations such as he said exist in the United States at the present.

Shorter working days and shorter working weeks, better planning of work to prevent periods of unemployment, increased public works, while they may never eliminate unemployment, will not eliminate it, the New York executive said.

"Unemployment insurance we shall come to in this country just as certainly as we have come to workmen's compensation for industrial injury," he said. "just as the old age security law passed this year in New York he characterized as "one short step" in the right direction, and said the real solution would create a fund, not contributed by state and county governments alone, as the present act provides, but which would be raised in part by workers and possibly by the employers. Of the present unemployment situation in the United States, Gov. Roosevelt said "economically" I differ fundamentally with some eminent gentlemen in public life who recently have tried to sell the nation a wholly new economic theory, especially in 1928 and 1929. This theory, contrary to all teachings of history, was that prosperity—i. e. constant work for everybody, man and woman who was willing to work—would continue just as long as high wages continued, combined for our pocket books."

Into the Heart of St. Louis

TO THE PEOPLE OF ST. LOUIS:

Over half a century ago, a group of farseeing St. Louisans built the St. Louis Southwestern Railway Lines for the purpose of connecting this city with the Southwest.

Primarily a St. Louis institution, with its entire mileage within St. Louis trade territory, the Cotton Belt railroad belongs in the heart of the city's financial and business district—downtown St. Louis.

With faith in the continued development of St. Louis and the Southwest, it is with pleasure that we announce the removal of our general and commercial offices to the "Cotton Belt Building", at Fourth and Pine Streets (formerly Planters' Building).

LOESCH SAYS DRY
SEARCH OF HOMES
HAS GONE TOO FAR

Member of Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission Addresses Commonwealth Conference at Iowa U.

By the Associated Press.
IOWA CITY, Ia., June 30.—Frank J. Loesch, Chicago, a member of President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission, said today that if transfer of prohibition enforcement to the Department of Justice did not improve conditions, some modification of the eighteenth amendment must be considered.

"I have no sympathy whatever with so-called enforcement which involves the searching of homes for a few pints or gallons of contraband alcohol," Loesch said in an address at the Commonwealth Conference at the University of Iowa. "That kind of enforcement has had a negligible result on the total production of merchandise illicit beverages."

"The greatest defect of it is its uselessness in diminishing the total sales of illegal beverages. The searching of homes in that respect, has, in my judgment, reached the very limit, if it has not passed beyond the right of a citizen to be secure in his home against unreasonable searches and seizures."

Division of Alcohol.
Loesch said the diversion of large amounts of industrial alcohol into illegal channels "has been a source of wholesale violation of the Volstead law and has been the pool for enormous sums of money wherewith to corrupt politicians and the law enforcement officers."

"Wagons loaded to capacity with barrels of beer and cases of liquors could not pass from one state to another and through populous cities without being seen," he said, "if it were not for the blinding effect of bribery on corrupted officials."

"If the states will not aid the Federal Government in enforcing the eighteenth amendment, and laws passed to enforce it, I know of no way to compel them to do so."

"Sympathy to Criminals."
Loesch said that a general violation of the fourteenth, fifteenth and eighteenth amendments to the Constitution lent sympathy and aid to criminals escaping arrest and punishment for atrocious crimes.

Loesch said the eighteenth amendment had been violated openly or covertly throughout the entire country and that sections in the Southern states have refused to abide by the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments.

Calling it a political error to allow illiterate persons to vote, Loesch maintained that criminal organizations could not exist without the "secret protection afforded by municipal officers and by other powerful politicians in and out of office."

Power of the Gang.
"The power of the gang," he said, "consists in the enormous sums it realizes from protected gambling and especially from beer running, so called, and imported or sold as imported alcoholic beverages."

The following message from President Hoover was read at the opening of the conference today: "All efforts to encourage intelligent interest in public affairs deserve the support of all citizens. Such interest and the full discussion of all issues are essential to self government."

H. W. Taft Criticizes Confining Crime Study to Prohibition.
NEW YORK, June 30.—The Senate's action in confining use of the appropriation for President Hoover's law enforcement commission to investigation of prohibition enforcement was criticized yesterday by Henry W. Taft, brother of the late Chief Justice, and Charles C. Burlingham, president of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York.

He declared such limitation would be unfortunate because court procedure and law administration needed improvement, which the commission could suggest. Taft said these problems were of greater importance than prohibition enforcement.

"It was the original idea of President Hoover," Taft said, "that the entire system of administering law in the courts, and especially the Federal courts, should be subjected to a scientific investigation, and that recommendations should be made by the commission to facilitate the processes for the enforcement of law in those courts and to remove congestion upon the calendars, which, in the thickly settled communities, has amounted to a denial of justice."

Extensive Investigations.
The commission has, I am informed, made extensive investigation, through most competent experts, and has gathered together much material. It would be a grave sacrifice of the public interest if that material is not used as the basis for legislation proposed by the commission.

The enforcement of the prohibition law is, of course, a matter of great importance, but from the standpoint of the general administration of justice in the Federal courts, the other matters which are being dealt with by the commission are of much greater importance."

Burlingham cited the late Chief Justice Taft as authority for the statement that "Administration of the criminal law in the United States was a disgrace to our civilization."

"Injustifiable, Inexcusable."
"To cripple the commission at this stage of its work by denying funds with which to proceed is unjustifiable and inexcusable," he added.

CARDS STILL IN FLAG HUNT AFTER TAKING SERIES FROM GIANTS

PITCHERS GOING GOOD; NEXT FOE, ROBINS, SEEM TO BE SLIPPING

By J. Roy Stockton.

You never can tell about a baseball club. Just when everybody was getting the cow bells out of the attic, to prepare for another pennant celebration, the Cardinals, after winning 17 out of 18, went into a tail spin and dropped to the second division. And then with pennances forming in a line on the right, because of two straight defeats at the hands of the Giants, the same Redbirds did an about face and gave John McGraw's team three fancy trimmings.

Even some of the Cardinal players were ready to surrender. They were forming in little groups and offering each other condolences.

And ladies and gentlemen, that is the worst enemy the Cardinals or any other ball club has to meet.

Taking it for granted that Chick Hafey, weakened by his long period of illness and inactivity, will regain his strength and his batting punch and taking it for granted that Ernesto Rudolph Orsatti, the dynamic little Italian, will be able to return to duty shortly, the Cardinals still have an excellent chance in the pennant race.

Still an Open Race.

It's still anybody's race. The Brooklyn Robins, who open a series here tomorrow, have shown signs of faltering. They have dropped out of the race, just as the Oldtimers did, and the Redlegs declared yesterday that the Giants and the Cubs were the teams that the Redbirds had to beat out to win a flag, and now that the Cubs have trimmed the Robins and the Cards have taken the odd game of a series of five from the Giants, the race has tightened up.

Chicago is eight games ahead. Brooklyn 6 1/2 and the Giants have only a half-game advantage over Street's team.

But the Cardinals will have to believe in themselves. If they think this isn't their year, that the fates are against them and that it is a hopeless struggle, to fight against such powerful teams as the Robins, Cubs and Giants, then the club will be lucky to finish in the first division.

Taking Stock.

It's a question of intestinal fortitude. Physically the Cardinals are well equipped for the battle. In Johnson, Hallahan, Grimes and Hayes they have five pitchers who have done brilliant work.

In Grabowski they have a young left-hander of promise, who has hurled some excellent games, and good enough to win.

Twenty thousand fire hundred persons who saw the Redbirds give Giants two beatings yesterday afternoon will testify that the team is in trim. Sylvester Johnson held McGraw's men to five hits in winning the opener, 3 to 2, and in the second contest, Bill Hallahan yielded six hits and won, 3 to 4, despite four misplays by his comrades.

CARDINAL NOTES.

Al Grabowski probably will do the pitching for the Redbirds tomorrow in the delayed opener of the series with the Robins. He pitched effectively against them in Brooklyn.

A trick home run by Jim Bottomley tied the score for the Cards in the seventh inning of the first game. Jim hit down the right foul line. Ott ran over to intercept the ball and it caromed off his arm and hopped into the corner of the right field stand.

It was a tough break for Bill Walker, as it was only the fourth hit off his delivery. He threw his glove in the air to show his disgust and then tossed the resin bag into the air. Maneuver followed with a single and while pitching to Johnson, Walker aggravated an old injury and when he started a delivery and couldn't go through with it, Umpire Pfirman called a balk, waving Maneuver to second. Walker called to the Giant dugout that he couldn't do any more pitching and Hoving went to the hill.

Umpire Quigley changed a decision in the seventh inning of the second game. With two out Ethan Allen took a hard swing at a pitch and Quigley called it the third strike. The Cards left the field, but Allen protested he had not run and after a long discussion Quigley finally conceded to call out Umpire Pfirman, who said he didn't think Allen had struck at the ball. Quigley, behind the plate, was in much better position to judge the distance the bat traveled, which made him reluctant to appeal to Pfirman. On Pfirman's advice he had to give Allen another chance.

FINAL RACES ON
MADISON CARD
ARE FEATURES

The races at five-sixteenths and a futurity sprint carded as the premier attractions on tonight's greyhound card at the Madison Kennel Club with the sixth and eighth engagements, both futurity sprints, and the ninth, over the five-sixteenths mile path, bringing together well-matched fields in secondary offerings.

Spalding, winner, three times and second once in five races with the last two wins, The Villain, a forward factor down to the wire in most of his recent efforts and Gengsack's Rebel, a red and brindle import, which set a swift pace in his last two races only to lose the decision on his last few strides, are entered in the futurity final along with Reckless Warrior, Plaything, Brass Rail, Safeway and Spirit J., all fast and capable sprinters.

Island Belle, a sister of Dry Creek, an done of the best distance swimmers known to Madison fans, will strive to halt the triumphant rampage of Dublin Castle, Dennis Callahan's crack rout in the ninth calling. In her last start Island Belle lost by a length to Air Capital after winning her two preceding engagements. Dublin Castle won his last two races in impressive style. Sizar, Air Capital, M. K., Black Baby and Bryn Brigade are other top-notch routers in tonight's field.

The fifth race brings out The Lobster, fresh from a rest of two weeks, to meet some sterling distance campaigners in Moving Irishman, General Bob, Chance Taker and Jerry, while Bob, Chance Taker and High Tension, among the fleet futurity sprinters entered in the sixth and Woody English,

INQUIRY ORDERED

PIG IRON TARIFF

Senate Adopts Resolution Unanimously for Investigation of Rates by Commission.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The Senate this afternoon broke into a discussion of the veterans' relief bill to adopt by unanimous consent, and without discussion, a resolution calling upon the Tariff Commission to investigate the new tariff rates on sugar, umbrellas, ultramarine blue and pig iron. Senator Copeland (Dem.), New York, offered the resolution pertaining to the first three items and Senator Reed (Rep.), Pennsylvania, amended by adding pig iron.

The commission is instructed under the resolution to study the sugar production here and abroad with a view to revision of the rates by the President, under the flexible tariff provision, if they are shown to be inequitable.

The resolution represents a series of efforts to test the workability of the flexible tariff which the President highly extolled in his recent statement on the Smoot-Hawley act. Senator Borah (Rep.), Idaho, a short time ago, put through a demand for an inquiry into the rates on cement, furniture and a long list of farming implements, to which Senator Bingham (Rep.), Connecticut, added by amendment, wire netting and electrical bells.

The Bingham and Reed amendments are counter attacks upon the Democratic-Insurgent Republican demands for lower rates. Reed contended throughout the tariff fight that Pennsylvania manufacturers of pig iron were not getting sufficient protection, and Bingham asserted in offering his amendment that small Connecticut manufacturers of bells and wire netting were being ruined by foreign competition.

The previous sugar investigation by the Tariff Commission resulted, in 1924, in a minority report by the Commission recommending a reduction of the 1.76 cents a pound duty on Cuban sugar carried in the Fordney-McCumber act. President Coolidge pocketed the report without action. The present law raises the rate to 2 cents. Earlier today the Senate, at the instance of Senator Hebert (Rep.), Rhode Island, had ordered a Tariff Commission investigation of the new rates on shoe lace.

Senate Begins Consideration of Substitute Veterans' Bill.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The Senate began consideration today of the World War veterans' pension bill with Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, urging the speedy passage. Democrats were prepared to press the Walsh-Connally substitute to allow higher pension rates and there was little hope of final action today.

Watson opposed any increase in the disability rates as contemplated by Senators Walsh (Mass.) and Connally (Tex.), both Democrats.

He said the bill embarks the Government on a pension policy for the first time with regard to World War veterans and added, in view of the attempts that would be made each session to raise the allowances, it was not wise to start with rates higher than $12 to $15 a month.

Pleading for passage of the measure as reported by the Finance Committee, Watson said it was a bill that both the House and President Hoover would approve. Minor amendments added by the committee necessarily would send the bill back to the House for concurrence in the changes.

"I think we ought to take this measure and finish this legislation," he said, adding the American Legion originally opposed to a pension for World War veterans at this time, now favored it as embodied in the pending measure.

Stalin doubtless had in mind claims of foreign corporations property contracted for during revolution rather than the losses.

The American General

concluded an agreement with Soviet Government whereby

MOSCOW, June 30.—Joseph Stalin's seven-hour speech before the Communist party congress, occupying 37 solid columns of newspaper print, has made him more than ever the strongest political figure in Soviet Russia.

The speech, as printed, touched upon three questions of vital international interest, which previous reports had omitted. These are Czarist debts, Bolshevik propaganda abroad, and the Soviet policy respecting minority races within the union.

Concerning the Czarist debts, Stalin, who never before spoke publicly on this question, declared the Soviet Government is ready to pay part of these debts if the powers holding such claims are willing to advance credits to the Bolsheviks. The Government regarding such part payments of Czarist obligations as extra interest upon such credits.

Stalin, without had in mind the claims of foreign corporations for property contracted for during the revolution, rather than the claims of foreign government for unpaid loans.

The American General Electric Co., for example, some time ago concluded an agreement with the Soviet Government whereby in return for a $25,000,000 credit advanced to the Soviets that corporation receives, in return, in addition to the regular interest, partial payment of its claim against the Bolsheviks for factories and other property confiscated during the revolution.

Stalin also made a notable utterance respecting Bolshevik propaganda, which is being considered abroad as a barrier against the establishment of normal relations between Soviet Russia and "capitalist" countries like the United States.

No Change in Policy.

He made it clear that however much the United States and other countries dislike the Soviet system of agricultural collectivization, extermination of kulaks (wealthy peasants), anti-religious propaganda and fight against counter-revolutionaries and saboteurs, the Bolsheviks would continue their activities unabated in these directions, because "they represent the inalienable right of the Russian workers and peasants as embodied in the Soviet Constitution."

The Constitution," Stalin added, "must and will be rigidly observed. In order to forestall the harmful effect of Bolshevik propaganda, capitalistic countries fence themselves off by cords or wire entanglements, graciously allowing Poland, Rumania and Finland the honor of protecting these entanglements."

Morality in Dispute.

Words are symbols and the distrust in which these terms, noble in themselves, are held, is a sufficient indication of the perverted use to which they have been put. "Morality" is soon transformed into an apposite epithet when it comes to the ends of persecution.

"Liberty" a mockery when it consists in depriving others of their liberty.

Prohibition has not only debased sound and honest words but it has added to daily speech a new vocabulary of horrors. "Gangster," "Racketeer," "Bootlegger," "Hijacker," "Take him on a ride," "Put him on the spot," "Poisoned hooch," "Juke-foot paralysis," these are only a few of the expressions that have become household words under prohibition's reformatory reign. To these must be added the unwholesome, filthy jargon of the brothel and the underworld.

Consider the word "temperance." In this day of jazz and whoopee, what an outmoded and old-fashioned flavor it has. It recalls the days of the temperance tract, the White Ribbon League, and the pledge. "Throw out the life-line." "Brother, come home!" "Fallen sinner, rise again!" Then, temperance forces were all engaged in saving the drunkard.

Yet were they such bad old days? The violator of the moral code was not treated as a criminal. The amen corner was reserved for the repentant sinner. Today the spot kept swept and garnished for him in a place of safety. He accomplished a great deal of good in the world. Unfortunately, he was afflicted with an appetite for drink which at times overpowered him. He was tempted and he did fall. Occasionally, he had to be salvaged from the gutter. His friends would pick him up. His wife wept and nursed him back to health and sanity.

Complete Unity Established.

Subscribing to Lenin's dictum on the same subjects, Stalin said that national and state differences between peoples and countries will remain for a long period after the establishment of a dictatorship of the proletariat on a world scale.

THE CRIME AGAINST TEMPERANCE

By Ex-Senator James A. Reed

A Series of Articles Indicting Prohibition on Eighteen Counts

'If Prohibition Is Right, Then Liberty Is Wrong; the Two Cannot Dwell Together'

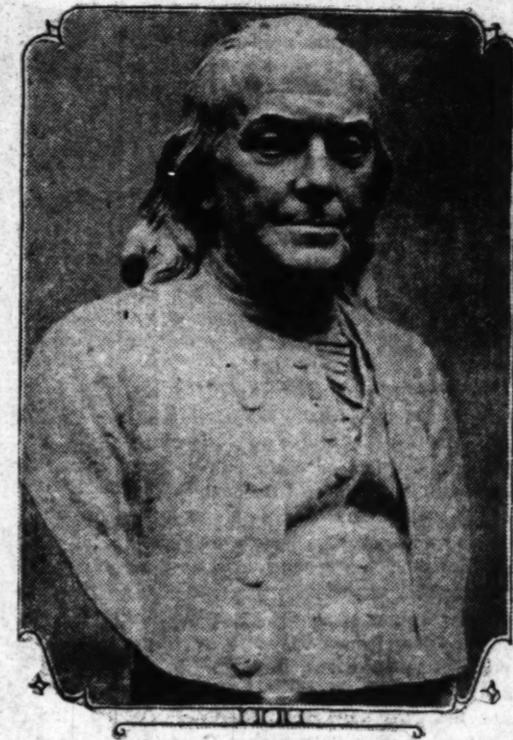

"The Kindly, Helpful Old-Time Temperance Worker Has Been Transformed Into a Zealot of Persecution."

ARTICLE VII. Let's Jail Everybody.

Another Patriot Who Was Not a Dry

"Every Revolutionary patriot was a violator of the present day prohibition law."

"Benjamin Franklin would have been locked up yesterday if he had been a prohibitionist," wrote Franklin. "I thought this method preferable to the punishment inflicted by some military laws for nonattendance at divine service."

Ben Franklin, from the bust by Robert Aitken, in the Hall of Fame.

I have not heard of an old-time temperance lecture since the Volstead Act was passed. The whole spirit of the times has changed. No longer is the evil of intemperance portrayed as a sin against individual character, a crime against self-restraint, a bawdry of morals, to be dealt with by the moral forces of society, the church, the school, the home. Instead, there are only demands for harsher penalties and enforcement of the law.

Indeed, the very word "moral" has become suspect and all too frequently is viewed with ironical skepticism if not with contempt. It is regarded as the cloak of hypocrisy or the mask of persecution.

Recently an able writer, himself as truly moral a young man as any of my acquaintance, complained of the repetition in a radio address by President Hoover of the phrase "spiritual and moral values" as tawdriness. So much has been crammed down our throats in the name of morality that the very sound of the word has become nasty.

At the Democratic National Convention in Houston, two years ago, I stated in a newspaper interview what I have said many times before and since, that prohibition should be left to the "moral forces" of the nation. The phrase was immediately seized upon to mean the Anti-Saloon League, the Ku Klux Klan and the Methodist Board of Prohibition and Public Morals, in spite of the fact that in season or out and long before the true nature of their activities became generally apparent, I had denounced them.

By a curious perversion of the value of plain and simple words, these intolerant and intolerable agencies now have, in the minds of many people, a monopoly of what was once, and should be still, the exclusive province of the school, the church and the home.

Much skill has been used to make captives of us all.

Benjamin Franklin would have been locked up years before the Revolution. During the French and Indian wars, he commanded 50 men and rationed out a gill of rum to each man every day just after prayers. "Never were prayers more generally and punctually attended," wrote Franklin. "I thought this method preferable to the punishment inflicted by some military laws for nonattendance at divine service."

Indeed, he was a law-violator, for getting drunk was illegal then, now. But he was not looked upon as a criminal. His frailties were considered with compassion and understanding. He was helped back to his feet and made useful in the community. Every time he was reclaimed he came back to the conflict against intemperance with greater zeal. In spite of his affliction, he continued to do a great deal of good.

Were he alive today he would be branded by this reformer as "a dangerous animal of vicious instinct and of criminal mind." The Volstead Act would put him behind the bars where the Anti-Saloon League reformers say he belongs.

Cotton Mather, Conspirator

If today's inhuman laws had been in force through the ages, how many of the wisest and the best would have been cut off from any opportunity to help their fellow men and to carry on the torch of civilization?

One of the earliest and most celebrated citizens of colonial New England, a man of great action in this country's annals for piety and religious zeal, the Rev. Cotton Mather, would have been hauled out of his pulpit and sent to jail for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws and inciting to piracy. In 1682, he wrote to his friend, John Higginson:

"There is now at sea a ship called the Welcome, which has on board . . . heretics and malignants called Quakers, with W. Penn . . . the chief scamp, at the head of them. The general court has accordingly given several orders . . . to waylay the said scamp and his crew, and make captive to said Penn and his ungodly crew, so that the Lord may be glorified, and not mocked on the soil of this new country with the heathen worship of these people. Much spoil can be made by selling the whole lot to Barbados, where slaves fetch good prices in rum and sugar, and we shall not only do the Lord great service by punishing the wicked, but we shall make great good for his minister.

Yours in Ye bowis of Christ,
COTTON MATHER.

Happily, this plan failed, but if it succeeded, it would have been prohibition's first case of "black-jacking" on the high seas and the spineless antagonist of the present President of the United States would never have established Pennsylvania nor indeed would these followers of William Penn ever have set foot in America to tell the tale.

Misguided Early Patriots.

The Volstead act had been the law of the land in the days of the Revolution and the establishment of our country, all subsequent history would have to be rewritten. Every Revolutionary patriot was a violator of the present day prohibition law or conniver at its violation.

Hamilton would have been forcibly removed from the scene, for he favored a whisky tax.

John Hancock could not have signed the Declaration of Independence for he trafficked in rum and would have been in the penalty of death if the law had been enforced.

Paul Revere might not have made his famous ride to warn the colonists against the coming of the British red-coats. He was a silversmith and made huge punch bowls, negeus ladies and pewter noggin all of which, under a recent decision of the Supreme Court, could have been considered as instruments for prohibition violation. So, he would have been in jail.

Prohibition agents at Lexington and Concord would have herded the embattled farmers to prison long before the appointed time for the shot heard 'round the world. For them godless farmers used to shift for itself, for John Marshall would not have been there to defend, expound and interpret the Constitution and his fellow Marbury vs. Madison would never have been written. Of this and another decision, Judge Story, the author of the monumental work upon the Constitution and his fellow Justice upon the bench, wrote: "If all the acts of his judicial life had perished, his luminous judgments on these occasions would give an enviable immortality to his name."

Judge Aided by Madeira.

Story wrote further, of John Marshall: "The chief was brought up on Federalism and Madeira; and he is not the man to outgrow his early prejudices. The best Madeira was that labeled 'The Supreme Court' as their honor the Justices, used to make direct importation every year, and sip it as they consulted over the cases before them every day after dinner, when the cloth had been removed."

No, with prohibition in force, the Constitution would have had to wait until the coming of those giants of the law and heralds of reform, Wayne B. Wheeler and Andrew Volstead. For both Marshall and Story would have been in the house-gov, serving sentences for "direct importation of alcoholic liquors for beverage purposes."

Simply apply the principle of prohibition to the annals of our national development, and the glorious recital becomes the gibberish of an idiot. This thing cannot be mentioned in the same breath with liberty. If prohibition is right then liberty is wrong. The two could not have dwelt together in any era of our country's history.

Constitution of prohibition as a political concept thwarts, modifies and negates every fundamental upon which our government was built.

Ponder, if you will, the definition of The New Freedom, as enunciated by the Rev. Ernest H. Cherrington, press agent of the Anti-Saloon League, at San Francisco, last September:

Personal liberty reaches its highest expression where the strongest inhibitions are invoked and enforced . . . And again:

. . . the menace of today is not the old soot of yesterday. He is pretty much a thing of the past . . . The real menace that we face today is the fellow, the sober drinker, absolutely sure that he is always in control of himself, who takes a few glasses . . . He is the menace of today.

It is the average man, the normal fellow, in President Hoover's words, "the law-abiding citizens," who are "stimulating crime," who are "a menace," and against whom the strongest inhibitions must be invoked. To use a phrase beloved by the reformers, could any doctrine or philosophy be more "anti-social"?

Tomorrow Senator Reed will discuss "Super-Propaganda." (Copyright, 1930.)

CHICAGO VOTES TOMORROW ON $300,000,000 TRACTION BILL

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 30.—The generation-old traction problem will be settled or further muddled in a special election tomorrow.

Providing for subways, interchanging transfers and the extension of surface and elevated lines, among other things, the proposed ordinance calls for an outlay of $300,000,000 in the next decade.

Some 230 civic organizations and groups, including the Association of Commerce, have endorsed the ordinance.

The opposition is unorganized, but fighting just as strongly.

To offset the opponents' cries of "politics" the proponents cite the millions of dollars to be paid in wages to the unemployed.

Doctor to Ruler of Abyssinia.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—A young Negro physician recently out of Howard University, Dr. John B. West, accompanied by his wife, was booked to sail today from New York on the Paris en route to Abyssinia, where he will become the personal physician of Ras Tafari, Emperor of Ethiopia.

A nephew of the Emperor who attended Howard University was responsible for the appointment.

BOY TROOPS HELP CAPTURE CAPITAL

Fatalities Not Yet Accurately Determined — Ex-President a Refugee at Brazilian Legation.

By the Associated Press.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, June 30.—Victorious at every turn, although not without a heavy price in human life and property, a revolting military coup today developed plans for restoring the nation to a constitutional basis. La Paz and other cities were without fighting for the first time in a week.

Soldiers of the revolution were showered today with flowers by exultant citizens of the landlocked republic, happy in their escape from the allegedly attempted dictatorship of Dr. Hernando Siles who resigned as president to coincide at re-election.

Dr. Siles and his family were refugees at the Brazilian legation. Gen. Hugo Kuntz, German commander of the Bolivian armies, was a refugee at the German legation. He had been reported killed. The revolt was as much an anti-Kuntz as an anti-Siles. Triumphant former General officer having made himself unpopular with his prussianizing of the army and his championship of Dr. Siles.

So much have conditions improved since last week when the few remaining troops loyal to the government and the revolting forces fought hand-to-hand battles in the street, that the military junta, or governing committee headed by Gen. Blanca Galdino, considered lifting the "state of siege" or semi-martial law imposed by the Siles regime during the last days of its power.

The rebels, with no want of dead and wounded, but the toll was heavy. Students in the military academy, mere boys inflamed with patriotic fervor, suffered most mortally.

A Government statement charges that Communist workers on the North Coast have prepared a strike of seditious character for July 4. Handbills, distributed throughout Honduras are said, to have urged destruction of private property and demonstrations against friendly powers.

The departments affected are Cortes, Atlantida, Colon and Tocoa.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, June 30.—Martial law prevailed today, three members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee set forth their objections to the London naval treaty and urged it be rejected.

The dissenting Senators were Johnson of California, Moses of New Hampshire, and Robinson of Indiana. The pact was recently approved by the committee by a vote of 16 to 4, with Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota, casting the fourth negative ballot.

The minority report stressed in particular the contention that the treaty fails to give America equality in sea power with Great Britain. And that it will not effect a saving to the nation's taxpayers.

Men who are leading movement to defer consideration of the treaty in the Senate until November, attached a personal memorandum to the report in which he said "indescent haste" was being used in obtaining ratification.

The report said the three Senators disclaimed militarism and Jinglism and that they "have ever been and still are advocates of fair naval limitation and honest naval reduction."

"Presented Without Explanation," the minority, it continued, "demanded that no treaty in respect to the United States Navy shall be ratified by the Senate which is disadvantageous to our country; which precludes an adjustment of our relations with Great Britain which will affect injuriously the naval protection of our enormous and fast-expanding sea commerce; or which destructively deals with our relative position in respect to other nations."

"All these things the London treaty does, and because it does these things, and because it is neither fair nor just to the United States we oppose it."

It is noticeable and a remarkable fact that a treaty for which so much is claimed, opposition to which arouses such a pretense of

The Kielein Case.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: O N Sunday, June 22, you published an editorial entitled "Another Right Gone Wham," which had to do with a recent decision of Judge Fred L. Wham in the Kielein case.

In the course of your editorial you made this statement: "We do not presume to read the Judge a lesson in law—and indeed he may be, probably is, right, within the letter—still we admit an old-fashioned prejudice against letting any official Tom, Dick or Harry gallop into a home on a basis of what he merely thinks, believes or suspects." You are probably familiar with that long line of decisions which protects the sanctity of a man's lawful residence against unreasonable searches or seizures. The statutes having to do with searches and seizures under the national prohibition act specifically require that there be an affidavit of purchase of liquor in a residence before a search warrant issue.

In the instant case I feel that you mislead the public by the statement hereinbefore set forth. The evidence in the record and the testimony of Kielein show that he lives with his mother in a residence located a block or more away from the premises which were searched and that the premises which were searched were the second story of a two-story frame business building located on one of the main thoroughfares in East St. Louis, in which Kielein was engaged in business.

The testimony further shows that at the time the prohibition agents knocked on the door Kielein opened the door, whereupon the prohibition agents perceived a strong odor of alcoholic liquor.

saw men seated at tables drinking an amber colored fluid from glasses and saw containers with similar fluids on the floor in one of the rooms.

I think it only just and fair for me to call this matter to your attention for your editorial leaves with the reader the idea that the premises searched in this case were a private residence, when in fact they were not.

Wholesale and Retail Beef Prices.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: T HE letter of "A Worker at the Stockyards" tends to create the impression that the retail meat dealer is withholding from the consumer the benefit of a "strongly declined beef market." If his information is correct and applicable to this market a top grade beef carcass should be available for the retailer at 16¢ per pound. In fairly extensive dealings with packers, I have not found one to sell the dealer top grade beef for less than 19 cents per pound, and if your correspondent will refer to his table of retail prices he will find that the majority of retailers are offering beef at corresponding prices. If your correspondent's meat dealer is still charging retail prices of a year ago, it is manifestly unfair to assume the same practice of the majority of dealers who immediately adjust their prices according to market fluctuations.

The Old Courthouse.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: N OW that a sepiulcher remains From which the spirits call A ringing challenge from the past. Let not Freedom fail.

It stands an emblem of a time When men for manhood stood.

And it was not mere bank accounts That made them great or good.

A time when rich and poor alike Could have their rights decreed.

When character was still a ground For customs to proceed.

When issues counted more than men.

And fairness, more than gold:

When forces sought out the man.

And were not bought and sold.

Let not this temple pass away:

It binds us to the past.

Nor should the moral of that day Be lost to us at last.

How prised should be its heavy tones,

When men could freely think.

And in the shelter of their homes Were free to eat and drink.

If on its stained and hoary walls The scroll of time unfurled,

All men would truly stand agast At this rule-ridden world.

The heartening that we perceive Its tower still erect—

A place wherein we might retrieve Our bartered self-respect.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: I DO hope city officials will not eliminate service cars from the streets. As it is, the service cars are the best, and, in fact, the only form of rapid transit we have at present.

EVACUATION OF THE RHINELAND.

After almost 12 years of military occupation, the last French troops today marched out of the Rhineland, and the German colors were hoisted again. This is the evacuation of the third and last occupied zone provided by the treaty of Versailles. It takes place almost four and a half years before the date set in the pact. This advancement of the date is in happy contrast with the evacuation of the first or northern zone in January, 1926, after a year's delay due to the Interallied Military Control's dissatisfaction with the progress of German disarmament. The second area was abandoned last November, 40 days ahead of time, in return for German financial concessions to France. The early action in the final zone shows the marked acceleration in clearing up the debris of the World War.

The long stay of French troops in the Rhineland was no happier than any other military seizure. The scheduled 15-year occupation, counting from Jan. 10, 1920, when the Versailles pact came into force, was one of the treaty's many compromises. Clemenceau had held out for the Rhine as a permanent French boundary. Lloyd George viewed protracted occupation as "useless, unjust, shameful and dangerous." His view was borne out when the occupying forces clamped down over a populace of 6,000,000 persons in a strict press censorship, issued an index of 180 forbidden books, prohibited certain films, plays and lectures, and forbade display of the German flag and singing of German patriotic songs. Fostering of separatist movements by the French added to the unrest. There were numerous bloody clashes between citizens and troops.

Under the Dawes plan, conditions in the Rhineland improved appreciably. The Rhineland army of occupation, which had reached a maximum of 150,000 in 1922, was considerably reduced. With Germany's admittance to the League of Nations, Allied statesmen began to view continuance of the occupation as unnecessary. The French plea for remaining was to insure reparations collections. When the Young plan took the indemnity problem from the field of politics, immediate abandonment became possible.

Just as the evacuation of the Ruhr, in 1925, was followed by the Franco-German commercial treaty, so the present action in the Rhineland may be expected to have similar results making for stabilization. Only the Saar problem remains to disturb the quiet of the western front. Conversations toward its settlement are now being carried on, and it is likely the region will be returned to Germany without the formality of the plebiscite set for 1935. Popular opinion in the Saar clearly favors Germany, and the French seemingly prefer to settle the matter beforehand, after obtaining what concessions they can.

Evacuation of the Rhineland is a great step forward in placing Germany again on an equal footing among the nations of Europe. It follows closely upon return to Germany of control over the Reichsbank and the German railroads, of disbandment of the Reparations Commission and fixing of indemnities on a sound basis by the Young plan. With budgetary reform, it is hoped the Reich will be able to meet its payments regularly. Efforts for a solid understanding between France and Germany now have a good chance of success, and Europe is that much nearer a state of peaceful stability.

LINDBERGH'S HOME.

The man who takes inventory at the White House, after counting the 1300 Presidential wine glasses once a year since 1926, got the bright idea of packing them in barrels, so that henceforth he will need only count the barrels. But why bother with them at all? Those who read the gospel according to Charley Hay know it will be at least 300 years before they can be used again. Besides, their mere presence in the White House is contrary to the spirit of the noble experiment. Wouldn't it be a "master political stroke" if that phrase has not become unpopular with the President, to place those glasses on the White House lawn, give axes to Bishop Cannon, Dr. McBride and other prominent disciples of the great Carry, and let them do their stuff in the approved manner of dry raiders?

the Cabinet who have spoken their pieces, we fear the impatient multitude will abruptly turn the dial when these earnest souls commence to relate. We must have our tariff served to us in pungent metaphor, subtle phrase and fetching figure. Weary us not with statisticians. Let artists delight our souls.

CUBA'S FLIGHT.

The day after the Hawley-Smoot bill became law, Cuban sugar was quoted at 125 cents a pound, the lowest price in 70 years. As in our cotton-growing states where the price of cotton is an accurate barometer of prosperity, so the price of sugar is the index to Cuban economic conditions. Sugar is by far the principal source of Cuban revenue, tobacco being a distant second and the tourist trade, cut in two during the 1929-30 season by the stock market crash, third. The increase in the sugar tariff from 1.76 to 2 cents a pound thus far has been absorbed by Cuban producers and, since they have for some years been skating on the verge of bankruptcy, it is doubtful how long they can survive this added blow.

Unemployment and business stagnation are rife in the island, with attendant political unrest. The situation is clearly reflected in the rapidly descending curve of American exports to Cuba. In 1924 Cuba ranked sixth among this country's foreign customers, buying American goods of the value of $199,775,000. Last year the island's American trade amounted to only $18,395,000. During the first four months of this year, American exports showed a further decline of 22 per cent, $27,472,360 as against $48,333,513 in the first four months of 1929. Thus, to aid a comparatively small number of sugar and cane farmers in this country, we are seriously impairing one of the best markets for American manufactured articles.

To cope with the political unrest caused by economic conditions, President Machado has taken a leaf from Mussolini. His drastic decree of last winter forbidding all labor, political or other public meetings or parades was held unconstitutional, but it aroused deep resentment and was followed by a strike of 200,000 workers. Machado's repressive measures are declared by his opponents to have resulted in the abrogation of the most precious rights of Cuban citizens, freedom of speech, press and assembly. On Cuba's Independence day, May 20, troops broke up a political meeting and in the melee six were killed and 21 injured.

Our intimate historical, political, financial and economic relationship with Cuba makes these conditions of deep concern to us. Will our short-sighted economic policy toward the island again result in American intervention, with all the ill will, scandal and bloodshed that such action usually implies?

THOSE WHITE HOUSE GLASSES.

The man who takes inventory at the White House, after counting the 1300 Presidential wine glasses once a year since 1926, got the bright idea of packing them in barrels, so that henceforth he will need only count the barrels. But why bother with them at all? Those who read the gospel according to Charley Hay know it will be at least 300 years before they can be used again. Besides, their mere presence in the White House is contrary to the spirit of the noble experiment. Wouldn't it be a "master political stroke" if that phrase has not become unpopular with the President, to place those glasses on the White House lawn, give axes to Bishop Cannon, Dr. McBride and other prominent disciples of the great Carry, and let them do their stuff in the approved manner of dry raiders?

MAKING A PHILANTHROPY OF WASTE.

Tons of green vegetables and fruits have been dumped from the New York docks in the last few weeks. These foodstuffs were dealers' unsold goods, articles no longer "strictly fresh" and shipments refused by consignees. In many instances, wholesalers are said to have destroyed goods because they did not wish to flood the market and force prices down. At the same time, prices remained so high that poor persons were able to buy only small amounts or none at all, thus reducing the market still more.

Consumers, wholesalers, railroad officials and food inspectors in New York deplore a situation that has resulted in the dumping of food, but all assert nothing can be done about it because of the present inefficient system of distribution. Thus is demonstrated in striking fashion several angles of the farm problem: the matter of glut and surpluses, the difficulties of distribution and marketing, the obstacles in getting consumer and producer together. These are problems on which the Farm Board is now at work.

St. Louis commission merchants have similar surplus stocks, but the method used here is praiseworthy.

The foodstuffs are donated to needy families, through the Charities Income Distributing Corporation. Each Saturday morning, and occasionally through the week, the baskets of needy applicants are filled, providing them with health-giving vegetables and fruits they would otherwise be unable to enjoy. On the one hand, the surplus fruits of the earth become prodigal waste; on the other, a fine philanthropy. While New York feeds the fish, St. Louis feeds the poor.

MR. DAWES DISAPPOINTS.

Ambassador Dawes, who has just sailed for England after a two-week visit to this country, failed to meet expectations during his stay here. To begin with, rumor had it that the purpose of the trip was to hand his resignation to Mr. Hoover. This did not happen. Then it was said Mr. Dawes was on his way to Chicago to clean up the crime situation there. He did not do this, either. A more whimsical report was to the effect that Mr. Dawes disliked English barbers and was rushing to Chicago to get a proper haircut. He was too busy in Chicago to get a haircut, however, and denied he had cabled ahead for hair chair reservations.

Other wise ones thought Mr. Dawes was in this country to put the naval treaty through Congress.

He didn't get around to this, either. A more whimsical report was to the effect that Mr. Dawes would keep on fighting to reform the Senate rules, and expected him to take up this campaign again.

But he didn't even mention the subject. About all he would discuss was the 1923 Chicago world's fair and a new type of collar he had adopted. What's become of "Helen Maria" Dawes, anyhow?

DANDELION DAYS. By Henry Williamson. (Dutton & Co., New York). $2.50.

"DANDELION DAYS" is the second volume of Henry Williamson's projected series entitled "Flies of Dream," and is a sequel to "The Beautiful Years." The latter book dealt with Willie Maddison's childhood. The present one carries the story into the period of adolescence.

There have been a large number of novels dealing in various ways with the subject that Mr. Williamson handles. The effects of the English public school on this particular character and the groping confusion of Willie Maddison's own spirit in an environment which, though not hostile, is none the less indifferent, make up the substance of the second book. The Colman Grammar School is depicted as the average school with its own standards that are implanted somewhat unintelligibly in the pupils' minds. For Willie Maddison is a place to be avoided whenever the possibility presents itself. It is to him a place of dull, senseless routine to be accepted in a spirit of resignation, to be put out of one's consciousness as quickly as possible.

The reader who knows the first volume of the work will see little development in the character of the older Maddison. There is even less charm in the Willie of the awkward age than in the lonesome, rather pathetic child of the first book. This change and the later change from adolescence to manhood which we have in "The Pathway" gives Mr. Williamson's work a greater verisimilitude. But through all these changes there is likewise a grain of similarity that makes one recognize the character throughout the various periods of his life—giving coherency to the whole work. For the other characters of the book, Mr. Maddison, Mary and Elsie, besides those serving a minor purpose, there is a consistent development throughout the three volumes.

The theme of William's Maddison's inability to meet the demands of his environment, which runs through the greater part of "The Pathway," is given, in a lesser degree, in the present volume. One feels that his discontent in this stage is less vital and much less of an obsession. There are compensations for the schoolboy Willie that are denied the older Maddison. His schoolmates and friends, although they might apply the epithet "mad" to him, have none the less more in common with him as a boy than have the chosen friends of a few years later. The book concludes with Willie's farewell to his friend, Jack, before the former leaves for London, where he is being sent by his father. The author handles this particular scene with admirable restraint. There is a noticeable lack of sentimentality in a situation in

The Week's New Films

By DON H. THOMPSON

WASHINGTON, June 30. Hotel lobby at Lethbridge, Alberta, summer three men stood engaged in conversation. One was Vilhjalmur Stoe, the Arctic explorer. Another was Hugh Scott, former chief of staff to the United States Army, now retired. Third was Scott Leavitt, member of Congress from Montana and chairman of House Committee on Indian Affairs. Stefansson, an authority on the language of the Eskimos, had been telling the other something of his experiences. Suddenly he turned to Gen. Scott.

"General," he said, "when are you going to record permanently your knowledge of the Indian language?" "I don't know, doctor," the 76-year-old Indian fighter replied. "I am a man these days."

Stefansson looked serious. "Well, should it fail to be done," he said, "the world of scholarship will increasingly be our blindness in letting go by the remaining opportunity to record the language."

WITHIN a few weeks Leavitt returned to Washington to attend the special session of Congress. Stefansson's words still ring in his ears, and as chairman of the Affairs Committee, he decided to act. He introduced a bill in the House, asking $500 to be used in making a permanent record of the Indian language with an aid in making pictures. Gen. Scott is direct and gave the man the hand in the hand he had in the bill when it passed.

The other day the bill was passed. Work will be started this summer. Leavitt, as the leading living authority on the language of the American Indians, has spent more than 50 years in life studying their lives and habits. He began his study in Montana when he was out of West Point. It was in 1876, year of Custer's last stand, and it has stood up to today.

ROUGH ROMANCE" at the Fox is one of those outdoor dramas of strong men and clinging women and it makes one wonder how such a feeble photoplay could escape from a Hollywood dark-room. It seems that the girl's poor old father was in the clutches of a monstrous villain, the hero was falsely accused of murder, and there was more than a little dirty work going on in the saw mill. Well, he of the moustache got away with the stolen pelt, there was a dance in town, the lumberjacks put on a show and—anyway, that gives you a rough idea of "Rough Romance."

DIANA comes forward with the neat straddle of the season. The Hon. Cravens, campaigning for State Senator, was asked by a heckler, "Will you dry in the Legislature?" That got a cheer from an appreciative cheer.

MAN HALPERIN, COMEDIENNE, FEATURES BILL AT ST. LOUIS

Burns and Allen Also on Vaudeville Bill; Movie Is "The Big Fight."

Some vaudeville acts just naturally fit together into the mosaic known as a good show, and others—the five at the St. Louis Theater this week, for example—build up an effect really impressive. There isn't a poor number on the bill, with the possible exception of the opening act, the Cadet Sazette of groaning saxophones, and it isn't bad, in its way.

The headliner is Nan Halperin, inimitable comedienne whose finished impudencies to the amorous Catherine the Great of Russia are still as delightful as they were when first revealed 10 or more years ago. No, advance advises to the contrary notwithstanding, Nan's offering is not new, but it is probably better than if it were.

Also high up in the running are Burns and Allen, an fast and witty and clever comedy team as make the rounds; their act isn't new, either, but of its kind it is the best there is.

Danny Duncan and company present a laughable, if heavy-treaded sketch, and for closing, the Five Reilly Youngsters hoof it fast and furious—nice clean-cut kids who do their work well and seem to enjoy it quite as much as the audience does. An added titbit is an overture from Victor Herbert

Day by Day in France

By O. O. McIntyre

PARIS, June 29.—PARIS awakens in me, for a few weeks only, a spontaneous gaiety I am rarely able to experience elsewhere. The minute I step from the Gare St. Lazare into its incoherent activity I am seized with an urge to go skipping down the main aisle balancing a feather on my nose, shouting oo-la-la's.

The glittering bistros, the honking taxis, the marble topped terraces, tables dotted with blue salt-and-pepper bottles, the mirrored shops, the belled work horses, the chirping chatter and the volatile shrugging have the same intoxication of native heady wines. Yet in a little while I want to get away—as weary of Paris as a child of a new toy.

I have never arrived without feeling I could spend eternity here and I have never left without hoping I will never see it again. A rickle Jades' flickle as the most heartless nymph du pavé who totes a shy smile over her shoulder along the boulevard. But such good company!

A hotel porter took our baggage and we decided to walk—the sun shining as only it shines in Paris. It was noon time, and the iron shutters were being lowered for the two-hour siesta. Paris was a confusing whirl of midnights, be-whiskered bicyclists, yipping dogs, perfume, and laughter—always laughter!

Many have told me the charm of Paris to them was its "timeless tranquillity." No matter what happens, they argue, Paris is always the same. Yet to me Paris has all the quick changing qualities of the chameleon. If one is sad, Paris weeps; if one is happy Paris will effervesce.

But the emotional side of France is as light as fluff and is worn on the sleeve. At heart it is the most unsentimental and commercially minded of nations. It is the great protean actor—the volatile poseur. It dresses Paris, its show window, and waits in the wings to steal a kiss.

The complexities of the French people infuse them with interest.

Out of the welter of 1200 years of fighting they have emerged a powder puff—as airy as thistle down. Save for the Napoleonic marauding, France has never been aggressive. Its back has ever been to the wall, the international Pag-this strong program. It is "The Big Fight," an extremely well done melodrama of the gambling racket and the prize ring. Ralph Ince, as the "big shot," gives easily the most outstanding performance.

A NOTHER wrinkle in this giddy inn that strikes me as zero in nothing but its size is an intricate instrument inset over bath faucet. It registers the exact temperature of water. I thought all the time, until my wife told me this evening, that it was a new fangled French clock. Saturday night I am going to take a bath in all temperatures—including the Fahrenheit.

The St. Louis Area of Financial- Commercial PRESTIGE

Where these three Great Buildings Dominate

THE confidence which the John M. Robertson organization has reposed in the downtown business area east of Sixth Street has had complete vindication. This area is increasingly the center of finance and commerce for Greater St. Louis. . . . The three great buildings of the John M. Robertson organization are now over 95% occupied—with tenants who are satisfied that no other location could lend equal convenience, accessibility and prestige. The firms who find quarters here constitute many of the leaders of the nation's business. Such firms have always found the prestige of this location an asset.

Removal of Cotton Belt Shows Trend Toward This Center

The entrance of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway into the former Plaisters Building—now the Cotton Belt Building—solidifies still further the eminent position of this section. The Cotton Belt, on July First, will occupy their new quarters in this building, remodeled and redecorated to make these offices among the handsomest and most efficient in the city. The officers of the Cotton Belt, by this significant move, give their stamp of approval to this section as the leading center of business in all St. Louis.

These three buildings now house over fifty railroads including freight and passenger departments—over eighty investment bankers, making this section the Wall Street of St. Louis—eighteen large life insurance companies—over three hundred lawyers, representing all branches of the legal profession—and more than ninety-five per cent of the fire, tornado, fidelity and casualty business in St. Louis is transacted in one building of this group alone—the Pierce Building. With the River Front development and the proposed Third Street, a double decked thoroughfare of hundred-foot width, showing promise of reality, the future for this center is even brighter. It is the dominant section of the city—and a section dominated in turn by these buildings. Firms or individuals interested in St. Louis' highest type offices may receive without obligation full information about these buildings. A competent representative will call to show you floor plans to fit your needs, and will show you through the buildings themselves, presenting the striking advantages you may here enjoy.

COTTON BELT BUILDING (Formerly Plaisters Building)

Fourth and Pine

The lobby of the Cotton Belt Building strikes one at once as being different from the ordinary building lobby. The grace and beauty of this lobby is a fitting introduction to the convenient offices in the floors above.

BOATMEN'S BANK BUILDING

Broadway and Olive

When one considers the low percentage of vacancies in this building, and the character of its tenants, it is realized that here indeed is "St. Louis' finest office building." The ability of this location to please such discriminating tenants is assurance that you, too, will be satisfied.

THE PIERCE BUILDING

Fourth and Pine

The recent improvements in this building, including new marble work and chandeliers in the lobby, make it one of the most beautiful in the city. Ten new elevators of the latest type have also been added. Over $300,000 has been spent this year in making the Pierce Building a location of greater desirability than ever, one that will lend prestige to any business.

"I Don't Feel Just Right, Doc."

(The Common Way of Describing Acidity)

You're not sick, yet not well. You're not well, yet not sick. You're color isn't what it should be and you probably look drawn.

A sort of vague, rumbling feeling is one of the first symptoms of acidity—that excess acid condition brought on the stomach by our unnatural eating, excessive smoking and tobacco smoke. It causes indigestion and stomach gas, which often result in sick headaches, dizzy spells, "nerves," mental depression and general lassitude.

And now, from Germany, comes this remarkable new oxygen treatment to correct acidity. The right way to come—Magnesia Oxido—the great new discovery of noted pharmaceutical chemists in Darmstadt, Germany. These small, white tablets are the only magnesia product known that releases active or dormant oxygen to the stomach, giving quick relief from gas and acting as a purifying tonic on the system. Helps to restore nutrition.

Then follows a gentle eliminative help—all without the use of dangerous, habit-forming drugs.

The Magnesia Oxido is acidity and health acidity is stealing from you, make this test. Go to Walgreen's Drug Stores or any reliable drug store and get a package of Magnesia Oxido. Take two after each meal for five days. Notice how much better you feel, how much more energy you have because of improved digestion. If you don't get the same amount, your druggist will refund every penny of your money. N-35.

When the housewife tells A & P her needs—by her purchases in its stores—an army of men, trained to obey her will, stands at command.

And because great numbers of women who like good things and good values trade in A & P stores, the order of one housewife becomes the order of many. A vast association of housewives, A & P's customers, thus grows out of a single aim—good food at least cost.

The whole A & P army is at their command, and the buying of all these housewives—massed to serve each—gives to all the pick of every crop, of every food.

Growers and manufacturers know that only their best products at fair prices will satisfy this large body of consumers. In return, these industries are assured of regular sale of their goods.

So the housewife who shops at A & P is certain of the best; while her steady, thrifty buying supports honest food industries in every part of the country.

THREE SUSPECTS HELD IN EXTORTION ATTEMPT

Caught After Demanding $10,000 From Four Cape Girardeau, Mo., Men.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., June 30.—I. R. Kelso, general manager of the Cape Girardeau Public Utilities Co., received a demand for $2500 from extortionists, who sought to obtain similar sums from three other prominent citizens, it was learned through a small personal advertisement in a local newspaper.

As in the other cases, Kelso was directed to signify his intention to pay through a brief statement in the newspaper. Kelso had published "I will," that being the agreed expression denoting that he would meet the demand for $2500 under a threat of death.

Two of the suspects arrested after a posse fired at the extortionists' machine Saturday were transferred to the jail here this morning from Marble Hill. They gave their names as Ralph Stewart and Joseph Reed, both of St. Louis. Neither would make a statement, but they will be questioned closely. A prisoner who says he is Ed Martin of Des Moines, Ia., is held at Marble Hill. Stewart and Reed were brought here in order to separate the suspects and facilitate interrogation.

The extortionists sent letters demanding money to George Meyer, former County Collector; Harry Himmelberger, lumber dealer, and Dr. O. L. Seabaugh, in addition to Kelso. The sum demanded in each case was $2500. Meyer and Himmelberger were directed to make payment early Saturday.

Fired in Automobile.

Officers driving took their places and deposited their clippings instead of currency in a box beside Highway 61, near Castor River at 2 a.m. The box was marked by a green electric light operated from the battery of an automobile. The posse of 30 deputies, policemen and constables then closed in on the extortionists, who started their machine and escaped under fire from sub-machine guns and shot-guns.

It is thought that at least one of the fugitives was shot following a report by a farmer that three strangers in a machine inquired the address of a doctor yesterday.

The suspects were arrested early yesterday in a machine and were armed, according to officers. At the time of the arrest all denied knowledge of the extortion plot.

COTTON BELT MOVES OFFICES
Now in the Former Planters' Building.

GENERAL and commercial offices of the St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) Railway Lines have been moved from the Buder Building to enlarged quarters in the Cotton Belt Building, formerly the Planters' Building at Fourth and Pine streets.

The railroad will occupy the entire fifth and sixth floors, the ground floor corner at Fourth and Pine streets, and 6000 square feet of space in the basement.

Correction of Story About Will.

In an account in the Post-Dispatch of Saturday of the will of Irving E. Langan, president of Langan Brothers' Furniture & Carpet Co., it was stated that $2000 was left to Miss Nonie Carney, who was erroneously described as Mr. Langan's housekeeper. Miss Carney is secretary of the Langan Brothers' company.

unity of the social, economic and political interests of the peoples of the entire Soviet Union," he continued, "but this does not mean we intend to deprive these minority races of their national independence and place them under the aegis of 'Great Russia' as described by Chauvinistic elements."

Dealing with the economic and agricultural advantages of the Soviet during the last two years he cited figures which, if taken literally may give other countries cause for thought. For example the fact that in heavy and light industries Soviet Russia this year will have at least an 80 per cent increase over the pre-war production.

International Trade Increase.

In comparison with 1927, he declared, Soviet Russia's international trade turnover doubled. The entire state budget of the Union also doubled since 1927. In 1927 the entire national income amounted to 23,000,000,000 rubles, whereas this year it will reach 34,000,000,000 rubles (about $17,000,000,000). The Soviet oil production this year, he added, will yield 800,000,000 rubles (about $404,000,000) which constitutes 55 per cent of the total quantity of oil production contemplated by the end of the five-year plan.

Russia has under cultivation this year 217 per cent of the 1913 cotton area. The state grain trust alone will have under cultivation at the end of the five-year plan, an area equal to that of the whole wheat area of Argentina.

All state farms taken together, excluding collective farms, he added, will cultivate at the end of the five-year plan 1,000,000 hectares more land than Canada has today.

Kalke's Young Plan.

Discussing the international situation, Stalin said the relations between the victorious countries and Germany could be described as a "pyramid" with the United States, England, and France on the top holding aloft a "Young plan" in which was the word "Pay" and below the pyramid the prostrate form of Germany, bleeding herself white in an effort to execute payment of an indemnity of billions.

"This is the spirit of London," Stalin cried. "To think that Germany is able to pay within the next 10 years $4,000,000,000 marks (about $4,000,000,000) without any social and economic upheavals is madness. Let German and French politicians pretend to believe in this miracle, we Bolsheviks do not believe in miracles."

Caught After Demanding $10,000 From Four Cape Girardeau, Mo., Men.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., June 30.—I. R. Kelso, general manager of the Cape Girardeau Public Utilities Co., received a demand for $2500 from extortionists, who sought to obtain similar sums from three other prominent citizens, it was learned through a small personal advertisement in a local newspaper.

As in the other cases, Kelso was directed to signify his intention to pay through a brief statement in the newspaper. Kelso had published "I will," that being the agreed expression denoting that he would meet the demand for $2500 under a threat of death.

Suspects Separated.

Two of the suspects arrested after a posse fired at the extortionists' machine Saturday were transferred to the jail here this morning from Marble Hill. They gave their names as Ralph Stewart and Joseph Reed, both of St. Louis. Neither would make a statement, but they will be questioned closely. A prisoner who says he is Ed Martin of Des Moines, Ia., is held at Marble Hill. Stewart and Reed were brought here in order to separate the suspects and facilitate interrogation.

The extortionists sent letters demanding money to George Meyer, former County Collector; Harry Himmelberger, lumber dealer, and Dr. O. L. Seabaugh, in addition to Kelso. The sum demanded in each case was $2500. Meyer and Himmelberger were directed to make payment early Saturday.

Fired in Automobile.

Officers driving took their places and deposited their clippings instead of currency in a box beside Highway 61, near Castor River at 2 a.m. The box was marked by a green electric light operated from the battery of an automobile. The posse of 30 deputies, policemen and constables then closed in on the extortionists, who started their machine and escaped under fire from sub-machine guns and shot-guns.

It is thought that at least one of the fugitives was shot following a report by a farmer that three strangers in a machine inquired the address of a doctor yesterday.

The suspects were arrested early yesterday in a machine and were armed, according to officers. At the time of the arrest all denied knowledge of the extortion plot.

COTTON BELT MOVES OFFICES
Now in the Former Planters' Building.

GENERAL and commercial offices of the St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) Railway Lines have been moved from the Buder Building to enlarged quarters in the Cotton Belt Building, formerly the Planters' Building at Fourth and Pine streets.

The railroad will occupy the entire fifth and sixth floors, the ground floor corner at Fourth and Pine streets, and 6000 square feet of space in the basement.

Correction of Story About Will.

In an account in the Post-Dispatch of Saturday of the will of Irving E. Langan, president of Langan Brothers' Furniture & Carpet Co., it was stated that $2000 was left to Miss Nonie Carney, who was erroneously described as Mr. Langan's housekeeper. Miss Carney is secretary of the Langan Brothers' company.

unity of the social, economic and political interests of the peoples of the entire Soviet Union," he continued, "but this does not mean we intend to deprive these minority races of their national independence and place them under the aegis of 'Great Russia' as described by Chauvinistic elements."

Dealing with the economic and agricultural advantages of the Soviet during the last two years he cited figures which, if taken literally may give other countries cause for thought. For example the fact that in heavy and light industries Soviet Russia this year will have at least an 80 per cent increase over the pre-war production.

We have moved to our new offices, 6921 Natural Bridge Road.

The rapid development of the northwest section in the vicinity of the northwestern industrial district and the site of the proposed General Electric Company plant has caused us to decide that our future operations would be confined to this district, at least for several years to come.

With enlarged offices and increased facilities, we are now prepared to give our growing clientele even better service than we have given them during the past quarter of a century in the real estate business in St. Louis.

JUNE BUSINESS BELOW AVERAGE FOR FIVE YEARS

Slump More Pronounced in Production Than in Distribution, Federal Reserve Bank Reports.

Few optimistic notes are found in the monthly review of agricultural, industrial, trade and financial conditions in the Eighth Federal Reserve District issued by the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis today.

"The volume of trade and industry in this district during the past 30 days continued considerably below that of the same time a year earlier, and the level reached compared unfavorably with the average for the corresponding period during the past five years," said the review.

"The tendency to slow down extended to retailing, wholesaling, and manufacturing, but was somewhat more pronounced in production than distribution of commodities. Output in virtually all manufacturing lines was smaller in May than in April, and except in a limited number of industries affected by seasonal increase in demand, the pace since June 1 has not been accelerated.

"The movement of seasonal goods through both wholesale and retail channels was retarded to some extent by cool weather. Lines of apparel and sheet millinery, men's hats, groceries, sporting goods, hardware and electrical supplies. Agricultural prospects in the district improved slightly during May, but conditions are spotty and uneven, due to drought during April, May and early June, and to extreme low temperatures during the past winter.

"In the iron and steel industry a rather marked slump occurred in new orders booked, both as compared with the preceding 30 days and the corresponding period a year ago. Building continued below a year ago, but showed an upward trend as compared with April.

"The general employment situation was less satisfactory than a month earlier. Seasonal occupations absorbed large numbers of workers, but failed to pick up all the slack created by releases of industrial plants and railroads.

Cast to bring in more selling probably to part of the business. July was selling well, but the market was weak.

On October 13, 1926, during the middle of the month, new car production was within a point or two either side of Saturday's closing quotations.

"Futures closed steady, 2 to 11 points.

WEBSTER HORSE SHOW

Miss Duthell Tupper the Sponsor and Robert Mertz the Star Performer.

Two 11-year-old riding enthusiasts dominated a horse show at the Webster Riding Stables, Rockhill road and Warde Avenue, Webster Groves, yesterday. Miss Duthell Tupper sponsored the show and Robert Mertz "stole" it from the adult performers.

Duthell, who lives with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tate, 700 South Hanley road, stood at the judges' stand, clad in white riding costume, and said that all the contestants were run properly. It was her second attempt at promotion, but last year's affair had only three classes and she didn't consider she had won her spurs, or blue ribbon.

Robert Mertz had been "stealing" shows for several years. Yesterday he made the spectators gasp in admiration when he put Little Foot, his favorite mount, through a bag of high school tricks, such as telling his age by pawing the ground and waving his hoof at the crowd to acknowledge applause.

Winners in the various classes were as follows: Three-gaited open class, Jean Janey, owned by A. N. Engle, rider Norma Engle; fine harness, Peggy, owned and driven by R. W. Brown; model two and three-year-olds, Dazy Ann, owned by R. W. Brown; ponies saddle saddles, Topsy, owned by Otto Brown; three-gaited combination class, Billie, owned by Fred J. Berkley; Topsy, owned and ridden by Otto Brown; three-gaited saddlers, Gardenia, owned and ridden by Betty Van da Linda; five-gaited champion, Norma Peavine, owned and ridden by Norma Engle; poleponies, Cater, owned and ridden by Mary Elizabeth Musick; girls, 16 years old and under, Sarah Davis, owner and rider of Bill Rogers; potate race, team of Jack Berkley, Dan Fischel and Spencer Dickerson; touch and out, Two Tone, R. C. Saunders, owner and rider and roaster class, Joe, owned by Lawson Watts.

Whistle and Clap Hands When Effect Is Made to Continue in Drizzle.

Spectators at the final performance of "The New Moon" in the Municipal Theater last night brought the performance to an end at 9:55 o'clock by whistling, clapping hands and shouting until the actors found it impossible to continue. The first act, delayed in starting a half hour because of rain, and once interrupted for the same reason, had been about half completed.

A light drizzle was falling when the audience manifested its displeasure. Guy Robertson, the leading man, asked for quiet and inquired what was wanted. "Rain checks" was the answer. After a conference off stage Robertson announced that the show would go on. More noise from the audience and another off-stage conference followed.

The stage was then darkened and it was announced that the performance would be called off if the rain had not stopped in 15 minutes. The management announced that rain checks could be exchanged for tickets to any performance of "Blossom Time," scheduled to start tonight for a week's run.

RAIN BEFORE SEVEN

By Jessie Douglas Fox

CHAPTER 1

SHAWN RAND had rented a stifling hot room under the tin roof of a shabby old house in Quincy Street. Each morning as he walked to work he peered over the high hedge into the Storm place.

The Storm house had a curious fascination for him. The people who lived there must be different, he thought, from the prosaic dwellers on Quincy Street. Now and then he caught sight of one or another of the Storms. What he saw only whetted his imagination: a girl with hair so fair it was like silver, an arrogant old man who took himself with superb seriousness.

One Saturday morning a book came hurtling through a window of the Storm house, thrown with such violence that it seemed to shoot to his feet in the dusty air through which he was hurrying. He picked it up. He was not less curious when he saw it was Antie—her and written on the fly leaf!

That afternoon, trembling a little at his temerity, he had brushed his unruly dark hair, glowed in to his blue-eyed face with its light cheek bones, and in an agony of bashfulness, he had gone through the stone gateway of the Storm place.

Shawn heard his own steps crunching up the wide gravelled driveway. He felt of the book bulging in his pocket, and raised the bolt. The door was opened by a small girl who gazed up at him with dark, winsomely eyes. Ellen Storm at nine already had a good knowledge of her charm.

"Jennet thought it was you. She told me to go to the door," Ellen explained engagingly. "Where do you live?"

"In the brown boarding house on Quincy street."

"Wait here. You're not to budge," she commanded, scuttling away.

Here was the living room to which she had led him. It was a long room through which the leafy branches of the trees cast a cool green twilight. It was lined with white bookshelves. Shawn knew it was the most charming room he had ever seen. But it was the books that fascinated him.

Outside the door of a room on the second floor Ellen stopped.

"He's here, Jennet!"

"The man you tried to hit with a book."

"Ellen!" Jennet started up. She had on a white silk slip that ended above her knees. Her delicate arms were bare.

"What do you mean?"

"I saw you throw the book. I was on the roof."

"How absurd! You knew I would never do such a thing. If you ever dare to tell—"

"Will you tell father that you saw me smoking a cigarette?" Ellen asked soberly.

"Well? Well, not this time; now—"

Shawn was unaware, as he knelt before the bookshelves in his best blue serge suit that stretched in shiny tightness across his shoulders, that someone was watching him. His wrists protruded from his sleeves, one hand, the other clenching his unruly dark hair.

Yet Judge Tarrant was right. Jennet thought there was a hint of power in his eager Celtic face. He became aware at last that someone was watching him. He got quickly to his feet.

This white, red-haired girl must be Jennet.

"I brought back your book," he said and frowned to hide his difficulty.

Jennet made a gesture for him to sit down. She chose the window seat. She knew she made a picture framed there in the radiance of the late afternoon sunlight. "I suppose you've always lived here."

"Only a few months."

"And before that?"

Shawn began to talk. He told her he had been a lookout on a freighter. She asked him to tell her about it. And when he was growing as he told her of those days.

"But after that?" Jennet probed gently.

"I'm in Judge Tarrant's office now, on Main street." He went on "and for the last year I've been saving like fury!" His face was attractive now, lit up with enthusiasm. "I'm a realist like children."

"I should think it would be delightful to be a child in this house," Shawn said, looking appreciatively about him.

Jennet cried with sudden passion. "Would you? Always to be pampered. To be domineered over! shimmering golden hair behind her! I didn't mean to talk about myself."

"Don't go," Jennet said.

"Tonight Father dines at the club and we are quite free. We ask anyone we choose. We always have people here then. It's frightening," Jennet ended with a tight gesture. "I'm to be treated like children."

"I should think it would be delightful to be a child in this house," Shawn said, looking appreciatively about him.

Jennet cried with sudden passion. "Would you? Always to be pampered. To be domineered over! shimmering golden hair behind her! I didn't mean to talk about myself."

"But you could earn your own living," Shawn suggested stubbornly.

"You mean, I suppose, that I could be a stenographer in some stuff office and live in a little room by myself and wear cheap clothes—and call it freedom. No, freedom only comes when one has money enough to break bonds."

"I wrote to Gordon and told him I couldn't marry him."

"Why didn't he?"

Katharine looked up with an ironical gleam.

"Have you heard from Gordon?"

Jennet asked. Katharine grew a little pale; shock her head.

"Kathie," Jennet's voice changed and softened, "you're too good for a man like that. He'll never amount to anything. You know it too, but you won't admit it."

"I wrote to Gordon and told him I couldn't marry him."

"Katharine, you did not answer. She was strangely inarticulate where Jennet could take out every emotion and turn it up like a colored balloon."

Jennet said suddenly, "Come. I

"You don't need to look at me like that. I'm not a ghost."

"Has it anything to do with Shawn Rand?"

"How absurd! I've only seen him a few times."

"I've been here too long now—talking," Shawn explained.

"Do stay to supper with us," Katharine said. "Father won't be home."

Shawn knew he would always remember the severity of that moment, for in the next it was broken by the entrance of Judge Tarrant in his baggy clothes with his kind cynical old face, his great booming voice filling the dining-room with his presence.

"No, my dears, don't get up. I've just come to see—to talk!"

He was their father's only friend. He and his father often shut themselves up to spend an evening blowing out clouds of smoke, discuss stocks and lap up toward him.

"Kathie, sometimes I wish I were more like you. I mean I wish everything were clear before me. I want one thing and then when I get it I don't want that at all. I want so much," Jennet went on as though she were talking to herself. "I have to have so much. And I will have it!"

"There's no use, Gordon. I won't marry you," she said in a soft firm voice.

Her coolness maddened him. "It's that fellow who was here tonight. He's gay and talkative. He and his father often shut themselves up to spend an evening blowing out clouds of smoke, discuss stocks and lap up toward him."

made, and, oh, yes, in your situation it is correct and particularly tactful to give a hint as what clothes to bring along, other party frocks will be needed. And in the role of guest it is right to ask if the information is not given beforehand, or whether it is customary to have dinner, and so on.

If the house is a servants one, the guest attends to her own room all means, making the bed, tidy up and the rest. If there is one servant, it would be advisable to let the bed the first morning, on if your hostess prefers, as we do, to have it made for you. It will tell you that it isn't necessary for you to attend to it. There are a quota of servants, of course the guest does nothing but keep her things in comparative order.

Many hostesses now, even where a house has no servants, serve tray breakfast to guests, which a herself may take up. This saves her free for a few extra hours to perform what tasks she must without having the guest observe the domestic wheels go round.

To make a guest or guests feel free to follow their own inclinations, yet be watchful that there is a sufficient variety of entertainment so that they are not bored in the role of the accomplished hostess, and on the part of the guest to disrupt the routine of the household as little as possible—to be, in fact, for the time being, a member of the family, tactful, cheerful, at all times appreciative.

In leaving, the visitor must not forget to tip the servants. The amount varies with the service rendered and with the pertinaciousness of the household. As a rule, two or three dollars will answer for a week-end—five for a week—for each servant. Of course it's a pity. One hates to encourage this system of tipping, especially in private houses, but except that certain hostesses rule otherwise, it is expected, and the servants must receive their "pourboires" as surely as the waiters in a restaurant. Custom demands it.

The hostess need not see her guest off. She may send her to the station in a taxi if there is no chauffeur, but it is much more hospitable to send with her a member of the family.

One obligation too frequently forgotten is the letter of appreciation. And it is always a nice little acknowledgment to send the erstwhile hostess a small gift. This, however, is not essential and if given it should be carefully chosen.
